Effort of Representatives of the Press to Obtain Personal Interview Fails, but Disciples Say She Is Well—Report That She Was Dying Stirs Concord.

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 29.—The attempt to see Mary Baker G. Eddy, the head of the Christian Science Church, here to-day by representatives of the newspapers of the whole country, in order to establish the truth or falsity of the startling charges that have been made relative to her health and her identity, was met with a flat refusal by those who are in charge of her home.

It was declared at "Pleasant View" as a reason for this refusal that full statements had already been made and that there "was nothing left to deny."

This decision followed the request made by Alfred Farlow, head of the Christian Science publicity department of Boston, that the newspaper men, or a delegation of them, be admitted to the house. A conference of friends of Mrs. Eddy was held before the decision was announced.

CARRIAGE BLINDS CLOSED.

A muffled figure went out for a drive in Mrs. Eddy's carriage this afternoon. The blinds of the carriage were drawn, so that the occupant of the vehicle could not be seen. It was apparently a woman and she was helped into the carriage with the evident intention of giving the impression that the woman was Mrs. Eddy.

To further give the impression that the occupant of the carriage was Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Pamella Leonard, the Brooklyn woman who, it is charged, has been impersonating her, was available for interviews while the carriage was out.

Many skeptical people here now are asking, "If that was not Mrs. Eddy in the carriage, who was it?"

A representative of the BOSTON AMERICAN called on General Frank S. Streeter to-day and informed him that the reading public of the United States was not at the present time prepared to accept the denials of residents of Concord as to the state of Mrs. Eddy's health, not because anyone's veracity was doubted, it was carefully explained, but rather because most of the newspaper readers of the present day would like to be shown by men who could not be classed as "interested."

HER ATTORNEY TALKS.

General Streeter was courteous, but, like everyone who has personal knowledge of Mrs. Eddy's affairs, was evasive.

"I am Mrs. Eddy's attorney," he declared, "not her personal representative. It is one and one-half years since I was called upon in the course of my business to see Mrs. Eddy until yesterday, when Mayor Charles R. Corning and myself went out to Pleasant View and saw her. But I have seen her driving daily, and I know that the story that she is dying of cancer is a piece of unmitigated nonsense."

er, "you know, as a fact, that your statement will be discredited on the very ground that you are interested."

"Perhaps," was his reply, "but I am not going to butt in here until Mrs. Eddy herself requests it. Still, when I see those who are closest to Mrs. Eddy this afternoon I will put your demand before them, and they may grant it."

AN INQUIRY PROPOSED.

According to New York dispatches it is now practically certain that a thorough investigation of the conditions existing at Pleasant View, the home of Mrs. Eddy, will result from the sensational stories in circulation.

Christian Scientists in that city are divided in their opinion regarding the state of affairs in Mrs. Eddy's home. Many brand the stories as absolute falsehoods and give them no credence. Others, more skeptical, express the belief that their leader, now eighty-six years of age, may have fallen under the influence of those with whom she has been associated and is no longer in a condition of mind or physique to attend to her duties.

In many quarters the belief is expressed that the only way to set the church and its officers right in the mind of the general public is to arrange for a thorough investigation of Mrs. Eddy's condition and have the same reported by a disinterested committee.

Unless this action is taken voluntarily by those associated with Mrs. Eddy in this city, the dispatches say, that the suggestion will come from some of the more influential members of the church in New York.

Many Say She Is Ill.

As never before since Mrs. Eddy took up her residence here has Concord been stirred over the reports that the head of Christian Science is facing death from cancer at her home here, and that she is being attended by a specialist from Boston. Her followers here are to-day actually meeting the trains which come here from Boston, and to members of the faith who alight from the cars they say that there is no truth in reports that Mrs. Eddy is sick.

While Christian Scientists and those who are in any way interested in Christian Science here, and they compose a considerable part of the population of this city, are denying these latest startling stories concerning the head of the faith, there are many here who declare that Mrs. Eddy is a sick woman.

Some declare that she is not daily seen

Seventy Drowned in Trolley Train Wreck.

DIVERS FIND 59 BODIES

Theory Advanced That Faulty Interlocking Device on Bridge Caused Accident.

Thorough Investigation Is to Be Made at Inquest Later in the Week.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 29.—Seventy dead is given as the total of the terrible disaster on the third rail system of the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad at Thoroughfare Creek.

Twenty other victims are in the hospital seriously hurt and ten of these are in such condition that their death is expected. There is a bare possibility that the death estimate may be slightly reduced through the reappearance of a few persons still unaccounted for, but not much hope is expressed for this.

A theory which seriously reflects on the railroad management has been advanced to account for the horror. It is charged that the interlocking mechanism of the rails on the drawbridge was fautly, and that this fact was known to the railroad people, as it had always been defective.

Fifty-nine Bodies Recovered.

According to a statement made to-day by Conductor James Curtis, in charge of the wrecked train, there were ninety-five passengers on board. Of these, twenty-five have been account for as still living. The dead, therefore, cannot number more than seventy at present.

Fifty-nine bodies were recovered up to early afternoon. All but sixteen of the dead have been identified. Of the twenty-five survivors, practically all can be put on the injured list, although one or two are only slightly hurt.

Divers are working to recover the remaining bodies in the cars. It is feared some bodies have been washed out to sea, and coast guards have been ordered to keep a lookout for corpses washed up on the shore. Hundreds of persons to-day collected outside the building where the bodies were taken waiting an opportunity to identify the victims.

One Car Raised to Surface.

One of the cars, the first to leave the rails, was raised by wreckers. No bodies were found inside, but several which had been imbedded in the mud came to the surface with the car. The police believe this proves their theory that several of the bodies may have floated through the broken windows and been washed out to sea.

Two wrecking cars and three divers are now working on the other cars. It is believed that at low water the search of the coaches can be completed.

Mayor Story made this statement this afternoon.

Inquest Late in Week.

"At the present time I am unprepared to say anything concerning or bearing upon the case of this terrible disaster. An investigation will be conducted and wherever the blame belongs it will be fixed. The public may depend upon that.

"Coroner Gaskill and I are one in this purpose and no man shall get away from us who may have had anything to do with the calamity of who may have any light to shed upon it. Coroner Gaskill will, before the day is over, impanel a jury, but neither of us believe that it will be possible

CLOSE DOORS IN PROBE OF FAIRBANK SCANDAL

TURN ON THE LIGHT!

Governor Guild:

Why is the hearing on the charges made against Wilson K. Fairbank being held in secret before Dana Malone?

The charges involve YOU, Governor Guild.

The man before whom they are being heard is the same man who conducted the SECRET hearing on the bribery charges in the Legislature, and who himself connived at the giving of the immunity bath in secret to the guilty men.

How is the public to know that Malone is not an accomplice in the hiding of the facts in THIS case, as he was in the hiding of the facts in regard to the corruption of the Legislature?

Are YOU afraid of the light, Governor Guild?

Attorney-General Dana Malone this afternoon gave a private hearing on the charges preferred by James M. Perkins, who was secretary of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and the Lewis and Clark Centennial Commissions, against Hon. Wilson H. Fairbank, member of both commissions.

Mr. Perkins charges that Mr. Fairbank requested the stenographer, Miss Ethel Rich, to receipt three bills which had been rendered to the commission and that, as secretary, he has been unable to obtain any data or vouchers, despite the fact that he appealed to Governor Guild.

No one was admitted to the hearing save those interested. It was held in the Attorney-General's office. There were present Mr. Fairbank, Mr. Perkins, Miss Rich and a stenographer, besides the Attorney-General.

Said Room Was Too Small.

This was Mr. Malone's explanation of having the hearing private:

"I know of no other reason save that the room is too small to hold all of the representatives, some fifteen or sixteen, who have applied for permission to attend.

"There is no secrecy about it. A stenographer will be present and I will let the press have anything from the reports. I have no inclination to keep anything back."

Mr. Malone, however, made no effort to obtain another room large enough to hold those interested, although there are plenty at the State House.

All of the interested persons arrived at the State House at 2 o'clock and immediately went into the Attorney General's office. Then there was commenced the inquiry into the charges made by Mr. Perkins which were contained in his affidavit made last Saturday before a justice of the peace.

Sensation at Rally.

This affidavit, which was read by John B. Moran at the Independence League rally in Tremont Temple Saturday night, created a sensation.

Governor Guild, who Mr. Perkins says, has knowledge of the charges, refused to make a statement until after the hearing by the Attorney General.

Mr. Perkins is a lawyer and was secretary of the commission from this State to the Lewis and Clark Exposition in Portland, Ore. In effect he charges that he has been unable to obtain from Mr. Fairbank any of the memoranda or vouchers of the expenditures of State funds at the Oregon fair.

Mr. Perkins demanded the vouchers and other papers because he had been told by the stenographer, Miss Rich, that she had been asked to sign three bills which had been rendered the commission, by Mr. Fairbank, who brought them to her.

Governor Guild, in the presence of Mr. Fairbank, his attorneys and Miss Rich, was told by Mr. Perkins that the stenographer had receipted the bills with a signature made by her purporting to be the signature of the respective creditors.

Governor Guild turned the matter over to Attorney-General Malone. Last Wednesday Miss Rich and Mr. Perkins spent four hours going over the matter with Mr. Malone.

TROOPS CLOSE IN ON RED MEN, BATTLE NEAR

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Oct. 29.—From five points soldiers are now approaching the band of renegade Utes and it is only a question of time until the redskins are either forced to surrender or are annihilated by the cavarly from Fort Keough approaching from the North, two more troops from Fort Meade from the northwest, two from Fort Robinson out of Gillette, closing in from the southeast, two from the same fort advancing from Arvada from the South, and two companies of infantry from Fort MacKenzie from the West.

The Utes are travelling northwest and according to a report have not yet passed the Big Powder.

The band is making direct for the Cheyenne agency across the river.

It now looks as though a battle will probably be fought in the valley of Tongue River, near Ashland. Ashland is twelve miles from the border of the Cheyenne reservation.

Squads of infantry from Fort MacKensie left Sheridan for Arvada, where they will guard the supplies in order to release the full strength of the cavalry.

HELD IN U. S. COURT ON LOTTERY CHARGE

Joseph H. DeForge and Henry J. Pote, of Lynn, two of the five men arrested Saturday night by United States Secret Service agents on the charge of conspiring to promote a lottery, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Benjamin H. Bradlee to-day. The men pleaded not guilty, waived examination and were held in $2,000 each for the December term of the Federal grand jury.

LEAGUE SCORES COURT VICTORY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Chief Judge Cullen to-day consented to convene an extraordinary session of the Court of Appeals at Albany to-morrow, where the attorneys for the Independence League will carry to the highest tribunal of the State their fight on behalf of the candidates and citizens generally whose petitions filed with the Board of Elections were despoiled, torn and mutilated.

That the ruling of the lower court, taking away the rights of the candidates to be voted for under the emblem of the Independence League, will be reversed by the supreme tribunal, is the belief of the league attorneys.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LEADERS FLOCK TO HOME OF LEADER FRANTICALLY DENYING

REPORT MRS. EDDY DYING OF CANCER UNDER BOSTON DOCTOR'S CARE

"DUMMY" IN HER PLACE IS DECLARED LIE

in her carriage on the streets of Concord, but that she is really confined to her home on Pleasant street and that a cleverly disguised substitute appears in her place.

Opponents of Christian Science here point out that those refuting the latest rumors concerning Mrs. Eddy's condition are not disinterested persons. They say that Attorney Frank S. Streeter has been Mrs. Eddy's counsel for years, and that Mayor Corning, who yesterday went to see her in company with her lawyers, had never seen her before and could not say that the woman he saw was really the head of the Christian Science Church.

Concord Stirred by Rumors.

So wrought up is Concord to-day over the assertions that Mrs. Eddy is really kept a prisoner by unscrupulous men who seek to part her from her fortune of $15,000,000, and is daily impersonated in her drives by Mrs. Parmelia J. Leonard, the Brooklyn leader of Christian Scientists, that business is actually being neglected.

Nothing at all is talked of to-day but the revival of the stories aimed at the head of Christian Science. Knots of people may be seen at every street corner and in the stores, and this is the one topic of conversation.

The local press is in accord with the preponderance of local sentiment and the Concord papers are preparing to deny flatly the latest and sensational rumors concerning Mrs. Eddy.

Leaders of the cult, the closest friends of Mrs. Eddy, have been summoned. H. Cornell Wilson, head of the Publishing Bureau of the State of New York, rushed to Concord hurriedly, ordering a cabman at the station to drive in all haste to Pleasant View, Mrs. Eddy's home.

The woman who is said to have passed for the Ermine Gowned Kindly Mother was riding on Warren street on a return from a drive from the city. The carriage had just turned into the drive when he arrived. The woman, whom it is alleged is Mrs. Parmelia J. Leonard of Brooklyn, stepped into the house followed by the Christian Science leader.

Run Down Story.

In an hour he reappeared with a force of assistants and scoured the city for statements from citizens to tell that the woman they had seen ride by each day was the same Mrs. Eddy they had known for years.

Officials of the city, prominent men, gave their testimony, and those who were called upon proved loyal to the founder of the faith that had netted Concord the greatest boom it has ever known.

At Pleasant View the members of the household strongly deny that Mrs. Eddy does not exist, still in the bloom of the wonderful health that has blessed her old age. The boundaries of the large estate have been guarded. Pickets prevent the way of all.

Calvin A. Frye, footman and secretary, receives all visitors; Louis C. Strang, his assistant, tells all the Mother is well, but that she cannot be seen.

Woman Is Housekeeper.

Mrs. Leonard, whose position in the Eddy household is said to be housekeeper, is strong in her denial that she is the impersonator of the Mother.

"I deny it," she says. "It is all malicious. I never entered the Mother's carriage."

Secluded in a room in the upper story of her mansion, where the windows face away from the street and where her gazes alone rests on woodland and park Mrs. Eddy sits ignorant of the stories that are being told about her.

Her secretary and advisors have kept the news from her fearing that the shock would prove fatal for as an ex-mayor of Concord told a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, "it might happen any time. Those 84 years would rest heavily on any shoulders."

Once again have the score or more of employes at Pleasant View been told that they must not talk. Each says the Mother is well, wonderfully well, and they admit they have been told to say this and nothing more.

John F. Kent, private tutor, former principal of the High School, recognized as an opponent to Mrs. Eddy and her teachings, who lives in a stone's throw of her door, is out of town. It is known that he saw Mrs. Eddy two weeks ago.

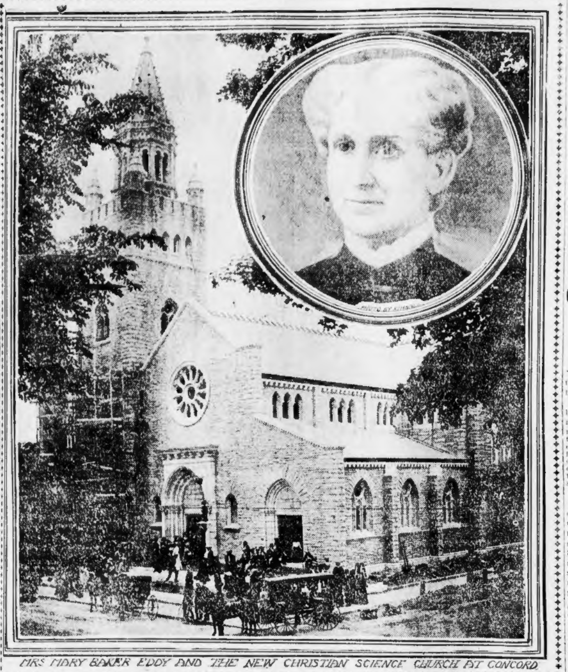
Later Professor Kent made an affidavit of the identification.

"I have believed for months," said he, "that there was fraud in these daily exhibition drives of Mrs. Eddy.

"One day about nine months ago, she or someone made up to impersonate her, bowed to me through the coach window. But now, after seeing Mrs. Eddy, I am absolutely certain that the woman who bowed to me was bogus and that a gigantic fraud has been unearthed."

The World tells of the ground for belief that Mrs. Eddy is dying of cancer, stating that two brothers and two sisters of Mrs. Eddy died from it, and that an operation for the same malady alone saved her father's life.

The World asserts that a Boston cancer specialist visits Pleasant View never less frequently than once a week and leaves Concord on the last train for this city.



MRS MARY BAKER EDDY AND THE NEW CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH AT CONCORD

Two Descriptions of Mrs. Eddy.

As Reporters Saw Her.

Mrs. Eddy looked more dead than alive. She was a skeleton, her hollow cheeks thick with red paint, and the fleshless, hairless bones above the sunken eyes penciled a jet black. The features were thick with powder. Above them was a big white wig.

Her body was pitifully emaciated, and her throat, on which sparkled a horseshoe of brilliants, was shriveled.

As Gen. Streeter Saw Her.

Yesterday I sent a note to Mrs. Eddy, asking that I, with Mayor Corning, be permitted to call on her, and the request was almost immediately granted. She arose and most cordially greeted the Mayor and myself, exhibiting no appearance of weakness or decrepitude, but a physical activity not ordinarily found in persons many years younger.

I may emphatically say that Mrs. Eddy is a remarkably well preserved woman for one of her advanced years.

MRS. EDDY'S ASSOCIATES DENY STARTLING REPORTS

CALVIN A. FRYE, Mrs. Eddy's private secretary:

"The statement that she is dominated by any sort of a cabinet is positively false."

CHARLES R. CORNING, Mayor of Concord:

"I never met Mrs. Eddy face to face until to-day. She is keen of intellect and strong in memory."

GENERAL FRANK S. STREETER, attorney for Mrs. Eddy:

"The charge that someone was impersonating Mrs. Eddy in her carriage rides is false."

MRS. PAMELIA J. LEONARD, Christian Science leader of Brooklyn:

"I have never even stepped inside of Mrs. Eddy's carriage."

PROFESSOR HERMAN S. HERING of the Concord Christian Science Church:

"I have known Mrs. Eddy for a number of years and know that she is alive to-day."

LEWIS G. STRANG, associate private secretary for Mrs. Eddy:

"I took the New York World reporters to see Mrs. Eddy, who was identified by Professor Kent."

J. E. FERNALD, president of the National State Capital Bank:

"I can state that it is Mrs. Eddy and no other person, whom I see riding in her carriage."

GEORGE H. MOSES, editor of the Concord Evening Monitor:

"I see Mrs. Eddy driving in her carriage through our streets almost every day."

STORIES "ALL LIES," DECLARES FARLOW

The Christian Science world is being stirred as it has never been before by the report that Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the church, is at the point of death from an incurable disease; that she is able to meet the few people who see her only through the stimulation of drugs and electric treatment, and that the woman who daily rides in her carriage is not the Mother, but a woman who makes up to impersonate her. Alfred Farlow of Boston, head of the publication department of the church, to-day asked those in charge of Mrs. Eddy's home at Concord, N. H., to admit the newspaper men so that the truth as to her condition may be given to the public.

Mr. Farlow charcterizes as "lies" the stories that have been printed, making the startling allegations about the mother of the church. He asserts that Mrs. Eddy is not afflicted with cancer, is not being treated by a Boston specialist, is not being impersonated by another woman in her drives, and that she is in extremely good health.

Many Hurry to Concord.

The revelations regarding the remarkable woman were made in the New York World of yesterday, and they were accompanied by affidavits. To-day Concord is the Mecca of scores of the cult who have gone there to ascertain the truth of statements. The town itself, for which Mrs. Eddy has done so much, scouts the story.

This statement was made to-day to a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN, in a most emphatic manner, by Mr. Farlow, at his office in Huntington Chambers:

"Mrs. Eddy is not dead. On the contrary, she is very much alive and is perfectly well. She is not afflicted with a cancer, and she is not being treated by a Boston physician or any other doctor."

"The stories printed by the New York World are malicious fakes and the reporters who wrote them malicious liars. I have communicated with H. Cornell Wilson, head of the Publishing Bureau in New York, who is now in Concord, suggesting that he arrange an audience for the Boston reporters with Mrs. Eddy. I suggested that all the reporters see her at the same time and that she give them five or ten minutes in which to ask questions concerning any subject they wish.

Impersonation a "Lie."

"Mrs. Eddy is in extremely good health. She has been driving daily for the past year, with the exception of one day when the roads were in bad condition. She was out driving yesterday.

"The statement that Mrs. Eddy is being impersonated by Mrs. Pamelia J. Leonard, the Brooklyn leader of the Christian Science Church, is a lie.

"The World reporters themselves saw Mrs. Eddy ten days ago and interviewed her in her own apartments. They went to Concord and claimed they had affidavits to the effect that Mrs. Eddy was dead. They said they wished to find out if that was the case. In order to prove that Mrs. Eddy was alive she granted the World reporters an interview. During the interview she was on her feet all the time and in perfect health. She talked vigorously.

"Vicious Stories Written."

"If Mrs. Eddy is alive and well why didn't she allow the group of reporters to meet her yesterday?" asked the reporter.

"Because other reporters have taken advantage of her," replied Mr. Farlow. "Most of the reporters who have seen her have written vicious and untruthful stories. It seems many of them are sent for that purpose. Mrs. Eddy is very much abused by the newspaper reporters. But I have asked her to meet the reporters to-day so as to make the whole matter right before the world."

Mrs. Eddy had not been told of the reports up to noon to-day.

"MYSTERY IN THAT TOWN OF CONCORD"

"There is a mystery in that town of Concord," said the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren avenue Baptist Church, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, when asked his opinion about the case of Mary Baker G. Eddy.

"Why should these statements be going around? The best way I would recommend to adjust this difficulty is to summon representative citizens from all the Christian denominations to look into this whole matter and publicly state in a formal way if Mrs. Eddy is in good health."

"Don't you think that this information published by the press will work against Christian Science?" was asked.

"It may tend to prevent the acceptance of the new cult in some quarters, but I don't believe it will alienate any of the present members; if it does, it will be very few."

"Do you believe the New York story of this case?"

"I have no confidence in that story. The whole thing resolves itself into this. There is significance in the fact that these stories should be possible. Now, suppose for a moment that some such story as this one should be made of Edward Everett Hale, so that his name would be involved in mystery. How long would this stand in Boston without being critically looked into?

"Public Wants the Facts."

"Have you seen the charge, doctor, that only interested parties have spoken in this matter?"

"Yes, that makes one say there is a mystery in that town of Concord.

"Now, I want the public to know that I have never attacked Christian Science. I believe in its membership are to be found fine people, excellent citizens. There is some truth in it, but not enough for a separate organization. Any one of them could belong to the Warren Avenue Baptist Church.

"There is the supremacy of mind over matter which they enunciate. They have made that trust conspicuous, but when Christian Science sets itself up as a philosophy advocating the non-existence of matter, it is simply ridiculous.

"The world wants to know if Mrs. Eddy is well, and when she makes this plain to the world some of the mystery will pass away."

Dr. Bates Dubious.

Rev. L. B. Bates, D. D., the father of ex-Governor Bates, was asked at the Methodist meeting what he thought about the mystery encircling Mrs. Eddy.

"I don't know much about it. I suppose all this is the mind affecting the body," said the doctor, with a genial smile upon his face.

"Do you think Mrs. Eddy has been impersonated by Mrs. Leonard?"

"No, I hardly accept that."

"How do you explain this present situation?"

"I suppose it is the faith in new things, some new excitement the people want, and they have less faith in the old things. I believe it will be made right."

DAY PLEADS NOT GUILTY

William J. Day, a lawyer, thirty years old, of No. 322 Dorchester street, South Boston, was arraigned today in the Superior Criminal Court before Judge Bond. Through counsel, James F. Sweeney, Day pleaded not guilty. Judge Bond will later set a date for the trial.

Day is charged with forging and uttering a cashier's check of the Arlington National Bank at Lawrence for $30, drawn to the credit of F. H. Mason and made by Frank E. McDonough of South Lawrence.

In a speech at Beverly last Friday night United States District Attorney Asa P. French declared that he had several times written to District Attorney John B. Moran urging action in the Day case. Lawyer Day was indicted in the first week of October, seventeen days before the campaign speech of Mr. French.

66 DEAD IN WRECK AT ATLANTIC CITY

to hold an inquest until the latter part of the week."

With the bringing to the surface of the bodies of those who had died so miserably at the bottom of the creek and the heart-rending scenes attending their identification, came the appreciation of the extent of the great disaster. What most has horrified everyone at the scene is the awfulness of the fate of the victims. Caught in the cars, locked in by lever-moved doors which they could not open, the helpless pleasure seekers were drowned.

Rescuers Work All Night.

All night, by the light of electric globes quickly rigged up to give assistance to the wreckers, men toiled, trying to get out the bodies of the victims. Scores of river men in their boats assisted in this work. Divers also were requisitioned and assisted materially. It is expected that it will take all day, however, to clear the coaches. It may be two or three days before the complete list of casualties is compiled.

A few persons escaped from the forward cars by breaking the windows and crawling out, to float to the surface where they were picked up bleeding and unconscious.

The ill-fated train was pounding along three minutes ahead of schedule time when it reached the draw. It had been going at fifty and sixty miles an hour, but when it reached the draw Charles Scott, the motorman, slowed down to about twenty miles an hour. James L. Curtis was the conductor and Ralph W. Wood and J. P. Dempsey were the brakemen.

The yacht Sinbad had gone through the draw a moment before. All looked well to Scott's eyes and he drove his train onto the bridge at the usual speed.

The first car "stubbed its toes" and jumped the track. It went thudding over the open trestle work for several yards and then plunged over into the twenty-five feet of water in the Thoroughfare. The brakes ground into the wheels, but the couplings were strong and the second car followed. The third also went in, but not until after it had hung for a moment on the edge of the trestle.

Guard Held Door Open.

Wood, the guard on the third car, seized this minute of suspense to save several lives. When he saw the first two cars were in trouble he ran to the rear of the train, opened the door and held it open until he was carried down. When the rear of the last car struck the water he let go and swam.

Within half an hour after the cars had plunged into the water the draw was surrounded by thousands, all anxious and willing to risk their lives to help. The bell in the town hall had been rung, calling out the police and fire departments. Every ambulance and undertakers' wagon in the city was pressed into service and physicians went systematically about preparing for the work of caring for the injured. However, most of those alive had been taken out when the police, firemen and doctors arrived.

A rigid inquiry was begun to-day by Coroner Gaskill and Deputy Coroner Atterbury of Atlantic City, who turned their attention first to the trestle and its drawbridge. The coroner declared that if the trestle had had the usual strong guard railing two of the three cars of the train would not have gone into the water and the list of dead would not have been more than twenty-five at most.

"The wheels on the drawbridge were higher than those on the trestle," declared Coroner Gaskill, "but even worse than that, the rails, where they should have joined, did not lock. Half an inch of rail on the draw projected beyond the rails of the trestle. This caused the wreck as the flange of the forward wheels of the first car struck the obstruction.

"Whether or not this is the result of criminal negligence," added the coroner, "will be determined to-day, when I shall empanel a jury of exceptional merit to sit in judgment at the inquest. The investigation will be carried forward slowly, but without hesitation, in a determined effort to get at the facts."

As soon as the cars were submerged Harry C. Deemer of Philadelphia smashed the window in the seat occupied by him and escaped. He also rescued his wife. Others who escaped say that by breaking the window Deemer was responsible for saving eight or ten people.

THINKS $2,000 GEMS BLOWN FROM WINDOW

Mrs. Ida J. Breed of No. 627 Columbus avenue is mourning the loss of $2,000 worth of jewels, which included several diamond rings and pins, and which disappeared under mysterious circumstances from the home of her mother at No. 15 Beltran street, Malden, to-day.

Yesterday Mrs. Breed laid the jewels in a small pink silk bag on a table in her room. When she went to look for it to-day the treasures had disappeared.

The table stood near an open window, and Mrs. Breed thinks that a strong gust of wind blew the bag out of the window. She believes that someone passing picked it up.

The front of the house is surrounded by a piazza. It is possible that second-story workers may have stolen the jewels.

ZEALOUS SUITOR LANDS IN COURT

Edmund B. Eastman, seventeen years old, of No. 1 Fitz terrace, Chelsea, was arraigned in the Chelsea District Court before Associate Justice Stearns to-day on the charge of trespass and carrying concealed weapons. He was fined $5 and sentenced to ninety days in the House of Correction. He appealed and was held in bonds of $500.

According to the testimony, young Eastman entered the home of Frederick C. Shepherd, at No. 15 John street, last Saturday night, to see Mr. Shepherd's daughter Helen, with whom he is smitten. He was detected by a servant and arrested. When arrested a long dirk was found on him, and although he said it was a hunting knife and intended for legitimate pursuits, Judge Stearns decided that it was a "concealed weapon."

PASTOR WILL ADDRESS CLUB

At a meeting of the St. Alphonsus Association, in St. Alphonsus Hall, No. 80 Smith street, Roxbury, to-night, the winning boat crews of the association will receive their prizes. There will also be an address by the rector of the Mission Church, Rev. Father Hayes, harp solos by the Yannette children, contralto solos by Miss Sadie A. Daley, bass solos by Hubert T. Smith, and a monologue by Dudley M. Prescott. Sergeant Thomas F. Goode will preside.

The association now has 400 members and twenty-five new applications are on file.

Carpets
Does Your Parlor Need a New Carpet?

The appearance of your parlor is determined by the carpet. Our Wilton Velvet Carpets are carefully made of selected worsted and possess a lustre and richness of coloring which cannot be obtained in the ordinary velvet carpet. The price you pay for a carpet does not determine its cheapness, so much as its durability and the amount of satisfaction the use of it will give you. You can buy a carpet cheaper in price, but you cannot buy a cheaper carpet if you consider that durability, quality and appearance count for anything.

Success in the Gulf Coast Country

Every Monday and Thursday there will appear in the columns of this paper an example of what has been done in farming in the Gulf Coast Country on the Brownsville Line. 14

$136 an Acre from Potatoes.

Mr. Fred Vint has a farm at Sarita, Texas. He irrigates it with water from artesian wells. This Spring he planted potatoes and the yield was 114 bushels to the acre. The potatoes were sold for $1.20 a bushel, giving him $136 for the product of each acre.

If you will write Mr. Vint, at Sarita, he will tell you more about his wonderful success.

For quick returns on an investment in land it is difficult to excel the Gulf Coast Country. It is not a one-crop land, idle all Winter, but raises two and three crops a year. The farmers there make from $100 to $500 an acre.

Wouldn't you like to have a small farm in the Gulf Coast Country where success does not depend on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.

The Winter Vegetable Garden of America
TEXAS

Take a trip down there and see for yourself—that's the best way. Every first and third Tuesday of each month, we will sell round-trip tickets to any point in the Gulf Coast Country and return, at the following rates:

From Chicago,	$25.00
From St. Louis,	20.00
From Kansas City,	20.00
From Peoria,	23.00
From St. Paul,	27.50
From Minneapolis,	27.50

These tickets will be good 30 days and they will permit you to stop over at any point.

Let me send you our books describing the wonderful crops produced in this marvelous country. Don't delay, write me to-day.

GLADYS DEACON CAUSED MARLBOROUGHS' BREAK, SAYS LONDON SMART SET GOSSIP

Boston Beauty's Visit to Blenheim Said to Have Started the Quarrel.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—While "incompatibility" is given as the reason for the parting of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, in the formal deed of separation, which, the Manchester Guardian declares, was signed on October 23, the gossips of Mayfair are saying that the friendship of the Duke for the Boston and Newport beauty, Miss Gladys Deacon, is the real cause of the quarrel.

Miss Deacon went to Blenheim as guest of the Duchess, and her husband at once took an extraordinary interest in the young American beauty. He excited his wife's jealousy by providing numerous entertainments for the Boston girl, and this, say the rumor-carriers of the smart set, brought to the Duchess the determination to seek a divorce.

The Duke is now at Blenheim and the Duchess at Sunderland House.

According to the Manchester Guardian, the Duchess by the terms of separation keeps Sunderland House, London, and her dowry. She is precluded, however, from going to Blenheim.

Makes Partial Denial.

The Guardian's report is in a measure denied to-day by Sir George Henry Lewis, acting as solicitor for the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, who says he is authorized to state that no deed of separation between the Duke and the Duchess has been signed, and that the children of the couple are not in the custody of the Duchess, but are with their father at Blenheim Castle. The text of the solicitor's statement is as follows:

"The Duke of Marlborough and members of his family, including the Marquis of Blandford and Lord Ivor Spencer Churchill, the duke's sons, are in the residence at Blenheim. The report that a deed of separation already has been signed is untrue."

The solicitor does not deny that a separation has been arranged.

Duchess Going to New York.

As soon as she winds up her affairs here, the Duchess will go to New York. Just how long she will remain there is as yet undecided, but the chances are that she will make her home there for many years to come, visiting here often, as she is still very popular with London society, the members of which sympathize deeply with her in her recent troubles.

That her return to America will be the signal for numerous entertainments in her honor no one here doubts, and her friends across the water will probably do everything in their power to make her forget.

The popularity of the duchess here is remarkable, since it is known that the King is rather put out by her steadfast refusal to listen to his proposals toward a reconciliation.

When the King lost his temper and declared that the Duchess had "displayed incredible obstinacy," the Duchess' friends feared that everyone would desert her; instead of that, society drew closer to the young Duchess and showed in every possible manner its approval and everywhere took great delight in telling of her proper determination in defending herself.

COLD SNAP COMING, SAYS WEATHER MAN

Snow Flurries Reported in Vermont; Great Lakes Are Storm-Swept.

THE WEATHER.

Fair and colder to-day and Tuesday. Westerly winds.

High tide—9:16 a. m., 9:40 p. m.

Sun rises—6:13, sets 4:43.

Moon sets—3:23 a. m.

Colder to-night, much colder!

Such is the chill announcement handed out to-day by Forecaster Smith of the Boston weather bureau.

The cold weather will continue for three days, says this same cheerful person. Then it may get somewhat warmer.

Frost is due to-night, a killing frost that will raise havoc with all forms of vegetation. The temperature will drop to 30 degrees. The coldest it has been up to date was on October 11, when it was 35. At 5 o'clock to-day it was 42.

Snow flurries are reported at Burlington and Northfield, Vt., while in Buffalo, N. Y., and Oswego, N. Y., are howling gales. The big lakes are storm swept, and considerable damage has been done to shipping. The gales are local and will not strike Boston, says Forecaster Smith.

DENIES WILL IN SISTERS' FIGHT

Declaring that he believed undue influence had been used by one sister to dispossess another, Judge McKim to-day in the Suffolk County Probate Court disallowed a will left by Mrs. Margaret McNulty, formerly of Roxbury, who died last March.

It was testified that Mrs. McNulty, while on her deathbed in a hospital here, signed a will bequeathing to a married daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Hill of New York city, the house, furniture and contents at No. 4 Morley street, Roxbury, to be held in trust for Mrs. Hill's son, Drew Van Rensselaer Hill.

Josephine McNulty, who, under a former will is left the house at No. 4 Morley street and other property, stated in her testimony that her mother had always said that she (Josephine) would receive the property. She said that when she was dying her mother signed a will that was brought to her by Mrs. Hill.

Judge McKim, in disallowing the last will, stated that in his mind there was no room to doubt that undue influence had been brought to bear upon Mrs. McNulty.

GARDNER TO BE IN DEBATE

HAMILTON, Oct. 29.—Physicians in attendance upon Congressman Augustus P. Gardner have forbidden all political activity except a joint debate to be held November 5.

SHILOH ELDER BARS SEARCH FOR PHELPS GIRL

DENIES ALLEGED HOLY GHOST VICTIM IS IN BOSTON HEADQUARTERS.

Denying that Miss May Phelps, the daughter of Mrs. Alice Phelps of Kansas City, and whom the mother declares is on the verge of insanity through cruelties, is at The Elms, the Boston headquarters of the Holy Ghost and Us Society, Nos. 547 and 549 Massachusetts avenue, Elder Fessenden refused to-day to permit a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to make a search of the premises. The elder would not comment on the statement made by Elder Jewell of Shiloh, Me., that the girl could be found here.

At the door, No. 547, over which the words "The Elms" are inscribed in gilt letters, the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter was met by Elder Fessenden.

"Is this the Boston headquarters of the Holy Ghost and Us Society?" was asked.

"It is."

"Is Miss May Phelps here?"

"No, she is not here," was the short reply.

Denies Jewell's Statement.

"How do you account for the statement of Elder Jewell of your society at Shiloh, to the effect that she had been brought here?"

"I do not account for it," said the elder.

"Can I come in and see for myself?"

"Certainly," said Elder Fessenden, and with that the reporter was ushered into a large bare room, in which many chairs were placed.

"This is the Gospel room," said the elder as he led the way. Then he explained the tenets of the religion and concluded, "You see, we are radical in religion, that is all."

"Let me visit some of the other rooms of the home to see if Miss Phelps is here," said the reporter.

"Is not my word enough?" demanded the elder.

"Well, you said that I might see for myself," asserted the reporter.

Makes Short Refusal.

"I will not allow it, however," said Elder Fessenden.

"If Mrs. Phelps came here and demanded her daughter would she be allowed to leave?"

"If the young woman were here, certainly. She would be as free as any child in a public school. She is not here, though. Good day."

That the young woman who is being sought by her mother who asserts that she has been abused until she is on the verge of insanity has been removed from the headquarters of the society in Shiloh, Maine, was asserted by Elder Jewell, one of the Rev. Frank Sandford's chief apostles.

Confronted by a BOSTON AMERICAN representative and asked about the condition of the girl, Elder Jewell replied:

"I cannot tell you."

"Miss Phelps is still at Shiloh, is she not?" was asked.

"I supposed she was in Boston," replied Jewell.

"What part of Boston?"

"At one of our branches there, I believe," said the Elder.

Removed from Shiloh.

"Will you say positively where she is?"

"I must decline to answer any further questions regarding Miss Phelps," said Elder Jewell with a frown. He refused the reporter admittance to the grounds of the colony.

From these words of Elder Jewell the authorities are inclined to believe that the poor girl, who is in pitiable condition both mentally and physically, and who the mother says is being driven insane by the treatment she is receiving, has been secretly carried away from Shiloh. While it is believed that she may have been taken to Boston, it is regarded as more probable that she has been carried to some out-of-the-way place where it will be impossible for her mother to find her.

First Steps in the Fight.

To-day Mrs. Phelps began the first steps in what is to be a determined fight for the release of her daughter, and what may develop into the downfall of Rev. Frank Sandford's colony. Her first move was to hold conferences with two of the leading ministers of the city, the Rev. Dr. Smith Baker of the Congregational Church and the Rev. Dr. J. W. Magruder of the Methodist Church.

These men will go with Mrs. Phelps to Augusta and there endeavor to [illegible] in order a special committee to investigate and regulate the affairs of Shiloh.

The Rev. N. H. Harriman of Boston, who, when he was one of the followers of "Elijah," induced men and girls to leave their homes and take up the faith here, will also join the appeal to the Governor. He is expected there to-day. Rev. Mr. Harriman, who was one of the high officials in the Holy Ghost colony, became disgusted by the treatment of the members of the colony and deserted.

To the Stockholders of the Trinity Copper Company:

As the final contract between the American Smelting-Balaklala and Trinity Company was passed today I consider it my duty to say to stockholders:

Ordinarily it might not be good business policy to make public the terms of a working contract, but owing to the many misleading and untruthful statements which have been spread abroad by those enemies of our enterprise, I feel compelled to do so, first refuting a few of these statements which have been published in such a way as to give them semblance of fact. Some of these false statements are:

The Trinity Company's ores contain only one percent of copper and no gold or silver.

The Trinity Company can ship only 100 tons of ore per day.

The contract is for only 100 tons a day with the right to increase only to 200 tons.

The smelting charges are prohibitively heavy.

No one has been allowed to examine the Trinity properties, and therefore all reports as to values are worthless.

There was strenuous opposition to the making of the contract by the American Smelting branch of the Balaklala Company, and this opposition was such that the contract was allowed to go through only by Trinity acceding to the demands of its opponents.

THE FACTS ARE:

First, the Trinity Company's properties probably have been the most thoroughly examined of any mining properties in America. Four thorough examinations of the property have been made. The examination by the American Smelting, under the supervision of John Hays Hammond, was on a scale of every five feet of our developed ores instead of the usual ten feet, and all samples were analyzed.

Second, there were five combinations anxious to deal with the Trinity Company.

Third, the Trinity Company is prepared to show to its stockholders one developed body of 800,000 to 1,000,000 tons of ore carrying paying silver and gold values and three percent copper.

Fourth, the Trinity Company is prepared to show to its stockholders other bodies, independent of and separated from the above mentioned body, where the prospects, shown by development, are such that at any time there may be exposed bodies larger and richer in value than the above.

Fifth, there was no difference of opinion, so far as we are aware, amongst the owners of any of the five combinations with which the Trinity Company held negotiations, as to the advisability of agreeing to the terms asked for by the Trinity Company.

Sixth, there was no difference of opinion between any of the interests with which we finally made contract, but, on the contrary, each and every condition the Trinity Company asked for was granted, and today with the passing of papers we receive formal notice that as the Balaklala smelter will not be ready to receive our ores January 1st, as called for in the contract, that company has transferred our contract to the American Smelting Company, as provided in the contract.

Seventh, the contract is for an amount of ore, which, beginning with our shipment of January 1st, increases in amount until after seven months it becomes 1000 tons per day, and thereafter, upon notice by the Trinity Company, that company has the right to ship any amount.

Eighth, the smelting charges are exceptionally advantageous to the Trinity Company.

Ninth, after complete investigation, it is the opinion of your Board that had we large amounts of unemployed cash in the treasury the arrangement we have made would be better for the company than the building of a smelter by the company.

In conclusion I would say in the past I have made statements as to the worth of our property. I depended upon the opinions of previous owners, experts, and my working managers for my facts. It is common knowledge I am not a technical copper man and therefore could have no first-hand knowledge in regard to the value and extent of our ores. Now, after extensive examination by the most responsible and able men in the business, backed up with their contract, all that I have said is confirmed.

THOMAS W. LAWSON,
President.

PERSONAL.

In placing the above before those stockholders who have stood with me in the past I would say:

The same persons who have so maliciously maligned the enterprise have also made and remade this charge: "Thomas W. Lawson bought the Trinity Company for $[illegible] and floated it for $25 per share, [illegible] and unloaded it upon the public at $40 per share, making a profit of over six millions, and then dropped the price to 4 to catch and [illegible] those to whom he had sold."

All the facts of my connection with the company and its flotation were made public over my signature at the creation and flotation of the company. What stock was sold to the public was at $25 per share. Much of this stock I repurchased in the open market at from thirty-five to forty-five dollars per share. When the price dropped, I, believing in the stock's worth, protected it to the best of my ability, but when it broke under 10 I was obliged, owing to my enormous Amalgamated and Arcadian losses, to throw over large amounts. I sold over 20,000 shares at 5 or less which had cost me over 35. My losses in Trinity, after deducting all my profits, have been much greater than all other stockholders combined.

THOMAS W. LAWSON.

EIGHT FAMILIES BEGIN LYNN RENT WAR TO-DAY

DECLARE THEY WILL NOT PAY ALLEGED EXTORTIONATE RATES; LANDLORDS HIT BACK.

LYNN, Oct. 29.—A tenants' strike which may involve hundreds of Jewish families began here early to-day when eight families, living in as many tenements, notified their Jewish landlords that they would refuse to pay exorbitant rents longer and defied the landlords to collect what they termed outrageous amounts. The tenants charge a conspiracy on the part of the landlords to extort money from the poor.

The striking tenants are making a direct appeal for moral support not only to their countrymen, but are distributing circulars broadcast through the city asking people of every nationality to assist them in their fight.

L. A. Hugo, president of the Lynn Tenants' Protective Association, announced to-day that as many more men would to-morrow refuse to pay the present rates, and by the end of the week it is expected that similar action will be taken by many families.

To Fight Test Case.

The tenants propose to fight the case to a finish, and at a meeting of the association yesterday subscribed $10 for the purpose of fighting a test case in the Lynn Police Court. They propose to have the constables who evicted the families of Hymen Hainstein and Morris Coerner from their homes at No. 28 Amity street Saturday haled to court.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock Judge John W. Berry gives a hearing on the tenants' application for a warrant for the arrest of Constable Fred S. Fessenden charging that he proceeded illegally in evicting the families, and also charging him with assault.

Landlords Make Counter Move.

The landlords have not been idle, and this morning sent notices to President Hugo, H. Hook and B. F. Miller, in which they refuse to allow them to live longer in their tenements. These men have been prominent in the strike and the landlords charge that they have stirred up a race war.

The tenants are basing their fight on the grounds that because of the high rents charged their wives have to work and their children have to go into the factories before they are of age in order that there may be money enough to support the families.

CATHOLIC SAILORS' CLUB AT HALLOWE'EN

The East Boston auxiliary of the Catholic Sailors' Club give a Hallowe'en party at Music Hall, Meridian street, to-night. A promenade concert from 8 to 9 o'clock will be followed by dancing.

AGED WOMAN CATCHES THIEF AFTER CHASE

Despite her seventy-nine years and the fact that she had been temporarily cowed by threats of bodily violence, Mrs. Catherine De Young, proprietor of a second-hand store at No. 53 Kneeland street, gave chase to two young thieves to-day and caught one of them. He was William Lynch, nineteen, claiming to belong in Chelsea.

Lynch broke away from the woman, but he was recaptured by Policemen Gillen and Whalen. The same officers got his companion, John Larkins, eighteen, of No. 144 Fourth street, South Boston.

Mrs. De Young was alone in the store when the young men entered, and, she says, drove her into the back of the shop. Then they grabbed two overcoats, two suits and sundry smaller things, all to the value of $50.

They ran into the street again, with the woman after them. Policeman Gillen saw her grab young Lynch and saw the young man get away. He and Whalen gave chase. The fugitives were soon picked up in the street crowds at the corner of Washington and Essex streets.

ACCUSED OF FALSE OATH

Augustus P. Clarke of No. 47 Hancock street, Newton Centre, was to-day held in $1,000 bonds for examination Oct. 31 charged with perjury. It is alleged that in May last Clarke, who is the treasurer of the American Circular Loom Company, a Maine corporation, doing business at Suffolk and Highland streets, Chelsea, signed a certificate testifying to the condition of the company, knowing it to be false.

The charge against Clarke is made in connection with the arrest of Aaron F. Smith of No. 11 Washington street, Lynn, who was taken into custody on October 17 on a similar charge. The warrants in both cases were secured by James S. Wilson of No. 2 County row, Chelsea.

Wilson is a stockholder in the company, and he alleges fraud on the part of Smith, who is president of the corporation, and Treasurer Clarke.

NEGROES IN CUBAN REVOLT

HAVANA, Oct. 29.—Several hundred negro revolutionists have taken up arms against the provisional government in Santa Clara and Camaguey provinces. The trouble has been caused by the claim of the negroes that their officers received pay from the provisional government for their services in the recent revolution, but that the common soldiers were not remembered similarly.

GUILD, FOR DIGNITY'S SAKE, DECLINES MORAN DEBATE

Says People Will Decide at the Polls on Fitness of Candidates for Office.

Before and After with Governor Guild in Joint Debate Issue

BEFORE.	AFTER.
(From Governor Guild's speech at Northampton on Friday evening.)	(From Governor Guild's letter in reply to Moran's challenge received to-day by the District Attorney.)
It is a perfectly fair proposition that a man should be judged upon his record. Come up and face me, John B. Moran, with your record in the office of District Attorney. Why are you afraid to discuss it? Whether you discuss it or not it is bound to follow you like your shadow; you cannot avoid it.	The Governor of the Commonwealth feels that a proper respect for the office he holds precludes him from accepting your proposal for a controversy relative to our respective personal merits. This consideration alone would prohibit him from entering into a joint debate, even if such debates had proved to be of service to the voters in the past.

Governor Guild in a letter to John B. Moran, his opponent in the race for Governor in this State, declines to accept the challenge of the District Attorney to meet on the same platform this week in a joint debate of the issues of the campaign.

Mr. Moran, who issued his challenge in his speech on Friday night, received the Governor's letter to-day. He will doubtless reply to it in his next speech. The reply of the Governor is bound to bring forth much comment, in view of the statement he made in his speech on Friday evening, which was considered by many as a virtual challenge to the District Attorney to meet him on the same platform.

Undignified, Says Guild.

The Governor, in a word, says that it would be undignified for him as a Governor to meet Mr. Moran in this way. This is the Governor's letter, in part:

"The Governor of the Commonwealth feels that a proper respect for the office he holds precludes him from accepting your proposal for a controversy relative to our respective personal merits. This consideration alone would prohibit him from entering into a joint debate, even if such debates had proved to be of service to the voters in the past.

"This is especially true when the candidate opposing the re-election of the Governor in office publicly claims that the real issue is whether he or the present incumbent is personally the best fitted man for that high office.

Records Not the Issue.

"I do not propose to let you dodge your record of broken promises and incapacity as District Attorney by diverting the attention of the public from your official records and my official records, on which we should both be judged. My opinions of your opinions and your opinions of my opinions are not the issue. The record of your public acts and the record of mine form the issue.

"Even if I were a private citizen I should decline to meet you on the crazy-quilt of misrepresentation that you propose—it is impossible to believe in seriousness—as topics of discussion.

"Your assault on my motives in the making of appointments has already been denounced editorially by a leading Boston Democratic newspaper as hitting below the belt, unfair and untrue.

"You say you will maintain that I am opposed to a certain labor measure, the principles of which I have publicly endorsed in the State House and on the political platform.

Refers to Inaugural.

"You say you will maintain in four kinds of ways that I am opposed to tariff legislation, which I have publicly supported not only as a speaker and writer, but in published correspondence and in my inaugural address to the Legislature.

"You say you will maintain that I am opposed to election reforms that I have officially recommended in my inaugural address to the Legislature.

"You say you will maintain I am opposed to the liberal treatment of the soldier within the limits of judicially declared law which I have always advocated and observed. Are you in favor of violating the decree of the Supreme Court for anybody's benefit? What do you know about soldiers? When did you ever put on a uniform for any purpose in peace or war?

Let People Decide.

"You say you will maintain that I am opposed to the passage of a law in regard to offenders unable to pay fines, though such a provision has already been a law for over a year.

"You say you will maintain I am opposed to the organization of commissions on a single-headed basis, such as I have already organized.

"Let the people decide between us, not by oratorical wrestling matches nor by elusive rainbows of gaudy promises, but upon our respective records, which is the fitter to be trusted with the great responsibilities, the splendid opportunities that surround an office ever to be administered with decency, dignity and honor, the governorship of Massachusetts."

WHIRLWIND CLOSE OF CAMPAIGN IN AND ABOUT WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Oct. 29.—An enthusiastic meeting of the executive committee of the Wage-Earners' Club was held in Engineers' Hall, No. 418 Main street, yesterday. Resolutions were adopted endorsing John B. Moran, E. Gerry Brown and James F. McGovern on the State Democratic and Independence League tickets. McGovern is candidate for State Senator from the second Worcester senatorial district.

A rally will be held in A. O. H. Hall, Clinton, to-night. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights rallies will be held in Wards 3, 4 and 5 in this city, and on Friday night the speakers will attend a rally in Holden Town Hall. On Saturday night the speakers will rest and prepare for a "flying trip" that will be conducted throughout the ten wards of the city on the night preceding the election. The full list of speakers will be driven about the city in automobiles and a score or more rallies will be held in the ward centres.

At yesterday's meeting the executive committee announced the following speakers for the campaign: John Alden Thayer, Democratic nominee for Attorney-General; John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America; Edward H. O'Brien, representative from Ward 3; ex-Representative Mack N. Skerritt; James F. McGovern, candidate for State Senator from the second Worcester district; J. A. Dennison, assistant District Attorney of Suffolk county; H. C. Bryant of Springfield, former New England organizer of the Iron Moulders' Union; Junius T. Auerbach of Boston, and George E. O'Toole, chairman of the Democratic City Committee of Clinton.

Mr. O'Toole, who is a strong advocate of the Independence League, will be permanent chairman of the rally in Clinton to-night.

"MORAN WILL HAVE 30,000 PLURALITY," SAYS RICHARDSON

Frank C. Richardson of Essex, who was collector of the port of Gloucester under President Cleveland, has been speaking every night in the towns and cities of Essex County, and when asked by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter as to the gubernatorial prospects, said:

"I firmly believe that both Moran and Brown will be elected, for in all my experience there has not been such an uprising of the people as this year. The other night we had a rally in Haverhill at short notice and had an audience of more than 800, while Lieutenant-Governor Draper spoke there Saturday to about 150 people, according to the statements of papers other than the AMERICAN.

30,000 for Moran.

"Moran will split even with Guild in Gloucester, and I think from what I have seen and heard in my travels, that he will be elected by more than 30,000 pleurality.

"The people are thoroughly aroused, and I find Republicans everywhere who want a new deal. They are sick and tired of being bossed and are going to assert their independence.

"The other night I spoke in Manchester and there were many young men in that audience. I told them there, and I repeat it now, that Moran will be the next Governor.

"I also told those young men to put this down: 'That William R. Hearst will be elected Governor of New York and be the next Democratic president.' You ought to have heard those young men cheer.

Republicans Rattled.

"The Republicans are badly rattled all over the State, and the people are beginning to see their sham arguments, one day talking tariff revision and the next day telling the people to stand pat."

"We are going to give Moran a tremendous vote in Essex County and don't you forget what I say."

WILL FORM LEAGUES THIS WEEK THROUGH WORCESTER COUNTY

WORCESTER, Oct. 29.—The local branch of the Independence League held a rousing meeting in headquarters, No. 554 Main street, yesterday and planned for an active campaign during the next week. Some 300 members of the league were present, including special delegates from North Grafton, Grafton, Clinton, Holden, Millbury and Uxbridge.

President William Crosbie explained why the meeting was called. He told the members that several rallies in the interests of the league candidates would be held in the city wards and in the county towns during this week. He recommended that the members decide to establish branches of the league in every ward in the city, ten in all, and also in every country town.

James Noonan, secretary of the local branch, made an eloquent speech in behalf of the league. Mr. Crosbie and Mr. Noonan were appointed to organize these branches. It was given out that a branch had been established in Ward 3 with a total membership of eighty-one. Thomas H. Malley is president.

On Tuesday night a branch will be established in North Grafton. Republicans and Democrats who believe that "right is right" have called for the establishment of the branch in this manufacturing town.

At the meeting to-day the candidacy of John B. Moran, E. Gerry Brown and James F. McGovern was strongly advocated.

WAGE-EARNERS OF HOLYOKE OUT FOR BROWN; FLAY DRAPER

HOLYOKE, Oct. 29.—At a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Holyoke Wage Earners' Club yesterday afternoon the candidacy of E. Gerry Brown, Independence League and Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, was indorsed. The matter was thoroughly discussed, a number of prominent labor workers taking part, and the political record and alleged business methods of Eben S. Draper of Hopedale were severely condemned.

The club also indorsed the candidacy of Frank Lawler of Greenfield, Democratic nominee for Congress in the First Massachusetts District, and requested all members to unite in voting against George Pelton Lawrence of North Adams, present incumbent, on account of his record on several bills in which labor was vitally interested.

Daniel D. Mahoney of Chicopee, Democratic nominee for Senator in the Second Hampden District, was indorsed and a committee of 25 appointed to assist Mahoney in his canvass.

The exposure in the BOSTON AMERICAN of October 23 of the plan of the Republican State Committee to flood the Second Hampden District with a large sum of money in an attempt to defeat Mahoney has aroused the club to renewed action. The special committee of 25 begins work to-day and between now and November 6 will make a thorough canvass of the entire district.

The Holyoke Central Labor Union, at a meeting yesterday, instructed the secretary to secure pledges from candidates to oppose employment of Chinese labor and for the maintenance of the Chinese exclusion act.

ASK POLICE TO FIND HUSBAND

The police think the fact that Harry L. Graham, missing husband and father, has lost three fingers from his right hand may lead to his identification.

Graham left his mother, his wife and his three-months-old daughter at No. 119 Bennington street, East Boston, on the morning of September 8, to go to his work as a driver for William Cunear, a contractor on London street. He failed to report for duty. Things hadn't been going any too well at home, his mother and his wife say, and he had threatened to go back to sea. The police were asked to-day to aid in the search.

Graham is twenty-nine years old, five feet eleven inches tall and weighs about 150 pounds. He is of dark complexion, with dark blue eyes and a small black moustache, which he sometimes shaves "clean." On his left arm are tatooed the initials, H. L. G.

A face wreathed in smiles never grows old. Wrinkles are the sign of care, and deep lines are chiseled by grief. A smiling countenance is a joy to behold, while a person always frowning is rarely pleasant, which is mostly due to disease. The victims of dyspepsia betray their condition by a scowl. Persons enjoying good health always smile, and "the world smiles with them." If you have symptoms, as pains in the sides, back or under the shoulder blades, tired feeling, smothering sensations, etc., you should take Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound, and present to the world a beaming countenance. All impurities and foreign poisonous substances are thrown out of the system, making the blood rich, pure and fresh. The entire body becomes invigorated and a new lease of life is given, coloring the entire existence with the roseate hue of perfect health. Thirty days' treatment 25c. All druggists.

SENATORS FAIL TO MAKE GOOD TO FEDERATION

Overtime Bill Absentees Appear Before State Branch and Try to Explain Acts.

CONDEMNATION TO STAND

Senator John J. Gartland of Boston appeared before the Executive Council of the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, at a meeting in Wells Memorial building yesterday, and, failing to give satisfactory reasons why he was absent from the Senate when the Overtime bill was defeated, was condemned, and the working people of Boston are to be called upon to defeat Mr. Gartland for the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Gartland's excuse was that he had to attend a committee meeting in Northampton. While it was agreed that he was at the meeting, the reasons shown were not satisfactory to the Executive Council, and it was voted to stand by the action of the convention at Lawrence.

President-elect Edward Cohen and Retiring President Francis J. Clarke were appointed to attend next Sunday's meeting of the Central Labor Union and urge that organized labor of this city mete out punishment to Mr. Gartland. A committee of three was appointed, consisting of Edward Cohen, Charles H. Winslow, and Michael D. Collins, to look up Gartland's legislative record for the past nine years on labor measures and report to the Executive Council of the State Branch, A. F. of L., and to the Boston Central Labor Union.

"Told It Was All Right."

Senator John E. Beck of Chelsea also appeared before the Executive Council to show reasons why he should not be condemned for being absent when the Overtime bill was killed. Senator Beck stated that Representative Parks of Fall River, who was in charge of the bill, told him that it would be all right to be absent that day, for the reason that another Senator who was opposed to the measure agreed not to vote in case Senator Beck was absent. A committee was appointed to visit Fall River, investigate the case and report by mail.

Many of the other Senators who were absent also give as an excuse that they had to attend committee meetings. Investigation by the Executive Council, it was stated at yesterday's meeting, showed that they were around the State House and could have voted on the measure if they cared to. The decision of the Executive Council was that no member should have let such an important measure as the Overtime bill go by default in order to attend a committee meeting.

Arrangements were made for the final week of the campaign against the re-election of Eben S. Draper for Lieutenant Governor and those Senators who voted against or dodged the Overtime bill and other opponents of labor.

Speakers were assigned as follows:

A. F. L. Speakers for Week.

Monday, October 29.—Secretary-Treasurer D. D. Driscoll, James W. Wall, James R. Crozier and John Golden, at Worcester.

Tuesday.—Same speakers at Clinton; Vice-President Robert L. Maloney, Patrick Sheehan and Francis J. Clarke, at Somerville.

Wednesday.—President Edward Cohen and James R. Crozier, at Lowell; Mr. Crozier to remain for the rest of the week, speaking against Senator Horton H. Hilton; President Cohen and Secretary Driscoll, at Newton.

Thursday.—James R. Crozier and President Cohen, at Chelmsford; Secretary Driscoll and Patrick Sheehan, at Bridgewater; James W. Wall and A. W. Morrison, at Dedham.

Friday.—Charles H. Winslow, at Pittsfield.

Saturday.—C. H. Winslow, at Adams.

Monday, November 5.—Francis J. Clarke, at Taunton; Secretary Driscoll, Patrick Sheehan and John Golden, at big rally in Lowell against Senator Hilton.

MRS. MIZNER TO SEEK DIVORCE?

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—It is current gossip that Mrs. Yerkes Mizner is making preparations to sue her young husband for divorce. What the grounds will be is not made public, but friends say that she can show that she was duped into a marriage by false pretenses.

They were happy for a few days, and then, it is said, Mizner demanded $50,000 to pay his debts. Mrs. Yerkes supposed she had married a wealthy mining man, and awoke to a realization that she had been married for her money. She ordered Mizner from her home and has not seen him since.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.

The Independence League pledges itself not to solicit or accept contributions from any monopoly, any corporation or any individual known to be profiting by political favors

The Independence League is now engaged in a political battle for the benefit of the people. In order to carry this warfare to a successful conclusion, so that the people may reap the reward, money is absolutely essential for the payment of the legitimate expenses of the campaign, such as printing, the hiring of halls, etc.

WE THEREFORE APPEAL TO ALL PATRIOTIC CITIZENS FOR SUCH FINANCIAL AID AS THEY MAY BE ABLE TO RENDER WITHIN THEIR MEANS.

We wish to impress those in sympathy with the Independence League and its objects that no one need feel any embarrassment in contributing a small amount. INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE.

ATLANTA NEWS BACKS HEARST

Special to the Boston American.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 29.—An editorial which appears in the Atlanta News today says in part:

The News has watched with great interest the developments in the campaign for the Governorship between William Randolph Hearst, Democratic and Independent nominee, and Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee. William Randolph Hearst lifted the veil and thereby uncovered the faces of those men who are supporting Mr. Hughes in the campaign, and who represent hundreds of millions of trust capital.

The Empire State of the South wishes the Empire State of the North godspeed in being relieved from the tyrannical domination of the trusts, and in being again restored to a government by the people.

FIGHTS POSTAL INCREASE.

The Boston Typographical Union yesterday adopted resolutions protesting against the proposed increase in second-class postal rates and calling upon the International Typographical Union and the American Federation of Labor to do all in their power in opposition.

AUTO TEST NEARING THE END

By J. C. KERRISON.

The men who are meeting with every success in their efforts to establish an indisputable 2,500-mile non-stop record with the twenty-horsepower Maxwell are within hailing distance of the end of that trip, but still far away from reaching the goal of their ambition. At 10 o'clock this morning they had finished 2,190 miles of the desired 2,500, and both announced a determination to continue on the Boston-Worcester course until they had rolled up 2,800 miles, and then finish up with a non-stop run to New York and return, on which both operators will go together with two observers and one mechanic.

Ralph Coburn brought the car into Boston on the early morning trips at 9:06 and at 9:10 started for Worcester. So far as can be seen the car shows no ill effects of its long continuous trip save its thick coating of mud. The night's ride last evening was the most trying of all. Ralph Coburn said:

"The roads froze up somewhat. The wind whistled and howled, and more than once we had to get out of the car and run around to get warm. It's funny, but it gets the coldest about 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. More than once we wished we were in bed. The arrival at the turning points is always welcomed by us. There we always find good hot steaming coffee. You don't know how good that coffee taste either. Come on and try a night ride. Then you will know what coffee does for a man. No, my eyes are not getting tired. It is hard peering into the dark, but then you soon get accustomed to it. My mechanic and myself know every rock and stone in the pathway between the two cities. It was rather interesting to come through Marlboro about 7 o'clock this morning, just as the people were going to work. Crowds stopped and cheered as on our way and it seemed good to us, after having traveled all the morning without seeing anyone save the milkmen and the farmers coming to town. Yes, we will make the trip all right. The car will finish the 2,500 miles at about 2:30 o'clock to-morrow morning. Then for another day's tripping it to Worcester, with a final run to New York and return. Lucius and I are satisfied with the way things have gone."

On Sunday the car came dangerously near being counted down and out so far as non-stopping of the engine is concerned. A spring in the commutator broke, and it was only by the quickest and cleverest of work that Mechanician Davis made repairs without stopping the engine.

The little car has already performed heroic work. It has done wonders, and has set aside all previous non-stop records of every character.

At the close of the run the operators and mechanics are to be tendered a banquet by the winner of the wager.

PHILA. JACK WILL BE ON TIME

BY TAD.

Manager Tom McCarey, of the Los Angeles club, which is to run the O'Brien-Burns fight, says he will hold that go in the afternoon and have moving pictures taken.

Well! well! well!

Maybe Philadelphia Jawn won't be there in the ring half an hour ahead of time. Maybe Jawn won't be there with the fancy robe, the big face massage and the haircut. And maybe Jawn won't grab the corner that faces the camera, and maybe Jawn won't smile his sweetest, whether losing or winning. Maybe he won't be fixed up to the Queen's taste, eh?

What a treat those pictures will be.

Burns will be kept with his back to the camera from the time the bell clangs until the end. What a chance he will have to peek at the picture men!

Jawn will enter the ring with his plug hat, his lavender gloves, his walking stick and valet. What a marvelous man, to be sure.

Here's a letter that came in the mail to-day. If you can't make it out, take it to a drug store. A $5 hat will be given to the one who writes the best explanation. The fellow who wrote it was either a sky pilot or rolled his pills too tight. Take a peek at it. Do you know what it means?

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.

Dear Tad:

After a long and perilous search we have at last discovered your real name. I know you are the "[illegible]" formerly. "The man with the [illegible]." We saw you boarding the Pennsylvania Railroad "special" the night of the [illegible] fight. So you were one of the things who sallied forth into the [illegible] town [illegible]. You smiled; in fact, you grinned, [illegible] were fooling the railroad bulls. [illegible] you had a pass and didn't get stung four [illegible]. This is a most [illegible] from the smoker contingent, but still why the [illegible]. Didn't you realize you were overstepping the [illegible] of your birthright as a melon head of [illegible]. We didn't [illegible].

[illegible] Terrence, and again we quote, [illegible] you were heard by [illegible], whereupon the astounded villagers [illegible] had forgot for the moment they had [illegible] amount of two bills in [illegible].

[illegible] T. McGrath, "The Goldfield Buzzard," forget by a moment that he was special envoy from the [illegible] court. We understand that he is taking dancing lessons from a correspondence school. [illegible] W. P. H. E.'s kindly lend Sunny [illegible] to the [illegible]. He's a beach [illegible].

[illegible] O'Brien we are sending him a box of [illegible].

We are informed that the beauty mark that [illegible] the Metropole (Kid Broad) is chasing butterflies and [illegible] paper dolls. Tell Hughes to come out from behind the tree so we see him. We are there with the India rubber [illegible] and the [illegible]. We don't wear [illegible] heels in our [illegible], but use a couple of shade springs to keep the [illegible] off our kicks.

Pray tell us if Sharkey and those sandwiches in one pocket, as per special and you must know that these [illegible] encounters are degrading to a young [illegible] of your almost human intelligence. Also noted "Smiling Bud" Goodwin of the New York Agony Club and backer for the [illegible] and our infirmary got so excited that he started to do the naval stroke crowding the well known political economist Benny [illegible] to the sad. You had us worried Tad as to your identity but as you sit and smoke another shell you can wonder who we are.

Fur Should Fly in Big Heavyweight Mill in Frisco

KAUFMAN AND BERGER CLASH WEDNESDAY

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—Excitement will run high around the sporting resorts of San Francisco Wednesday night. On that eventful evening Sam Berger and Al Kaufman, two of the most promising cubs in the heavyweight class, will get together and decide who has the right to represent the Golden West in future bouts bearing upon the world's championship. It is quite a while since there was so much genuine interest and enthusiasm over a boxing match in this city. The chief charm of the event is that it is one of those on which the malign shadow of suspicion does not fall. There is acute rivalry between Sam and Al and the loser will drain a full sized cup of bitterness to the dregs.

Then again they are such bonnie big fellows and so young and sturdy. Each of them is a 200-pounder in his own right, and both are graduates of the Olympic Club, probably the greatest alma mater that American boxers have known. It does not follow because a fellow never went to a boxing college it isn't possible for him to attain such great heights in the fistic profession. Jeffries and Sailor Sharkey are the best proofs of this, but still when you know that a brace of prospective opponents such as Kaufman and Berger began a study of the manly art when they were comparatively light and leggy, and continued their researches all through their sapling years and while their shoulders were broadening and their muscles developing, there is a kind of guarantee that they will put up a workmanlike battle.

Sam and Al Are Young.

In a nutshell, it is recognized that Sam and Al are young, stalwart and educated in a pugilistic sense. That is why the patrons of the sport are looking forward to an interesting fight.

In the old days no season of training was complete unless the rivals at work slang whanged each other to some extent. The practice had fallen into disuse, but I see that Kaufman has revived it. The pleasant-faced lad with the blacksmith's mighty arms, took exception because Berger spoke of taking on Jeffries after disposing of Kaufman. Al, after remarking casually that it did not do to look too far ahead, went on to say that Berger would not feel like taking on anybody after the little affair Wednesday night. Warming to his subject, Kaufman told a knot of visitors that he sized up Berger years ago when they used to spar together just for the fun of the thing, and that he made up his mind that if it ever came to a test he would be able to account for Berger in about three rounds.

Sam smiled superciliously when he heard this and confided to his friends that he never showed his true form to Kaufman when they were fledglings.

"I had 'em on with Kaufman scores of times, but I was always under wraps," said Sam.

Berger's Remarkable Foresight.

There's foresight for you. I've heard of the fellow who found a bung and put it carefully away trusting to luck to some day find a barrel that would fit it. But Sam has it all over that party in looking into the future. It may puzzle Kaufman to learn that the friend of his boyhood wasn't fully extended when they used to box behind the barn with stockings filled with hay for gloves, but it will not cause him to alter his opinion. He thinks he can lick Sam and Sam thinks he can lick Al.

Results—A bitter fight, with heart burnings galore for one or the other.

I hear on excellent authority that big Jim Jeffries will shortly desert the peaceful glades of Burbank for the simmering life of San Francisco.

The news conveyed to me is that Jeffries is really to open a saloon somewhere in the neighborhood of Fillmore Street.

When I heard it there came to me like a flash that line in Hughie Keogh's clever verse, "Will he stick?—Well, I dunno."

Its all very well to stay retired and reaffirm your intention to that effect when you're anchored in alfalfa like a swordfish in a bed of kelp. When the fruity flavor of the old red eye is all around you, when the high ball glasses are clinking and the buzz of much fight talk fills the ears, it may be different.

When Jeffries "has come," some of our embryo champions will be saying with Jack O'Brien, "The only way I want to grasp Mr. Jeffries' hand is in a friendly spirit," and we won't have the heart to remind them of the things they said when the big fellow was feeding the calves and trimming alfalfa vines.

If Dick Fitzpatrick decides to quit the ring he should be able to take a position in the shipping department of one of the big stores of his home town, as he is an artist at wrapping up.

In his affair with Joe Thomas he enveloped his head in gloves and forearms until it was nearly as well protected as though he had it in a bird cage. His sconce was so much under cover, in fact that Thomas seldom drew back his arm to hit at it. He preferred to feint for openings and make little dabs like a kitten makes at a cork. The Colma crowd gave Nick credit for gameness. He pursued a forlorn hope for fifteen rounds and incidentally enabled his cronies to cash by standing erect to be provided for that length of time.

Dick Reckless in Sixteenth.

When the sixteenth round began Dick threw away his earguards and slammed in with great recklessness. And in about a minute and a half Thomas was receiving those heartfelt congratulations which are always showered upon the winner, no matter which corner he hails from.

There seems to be new worlds for Thomas to conquer now. He has defeated Honey Mellody, who defeated Joe Walcott and that alone should be pretty good credentials for any man traveling as the welterweight champion. They seem to think here though that Mellody can give Thomas a rattling good argument if a return date is arranged and it would not surprise me if Joe and Honey are sent together in San Francisco next month. There is a possibility, however, that Mike Twin Sullivan may be selected instead of Mellody.

NOTES OF THE HARNESS HORSE

Death has been cutting down the noted sires recently at an alarming rate. Red Bell, 2.11¼, Alcantara, 2.23, Strathberry, 2.04¼, American Boy, 2.26½, and Director Wilkes have gone in the past few weeks.

The pacer Ned Cole, 2.17¼, property of F. K. Kittredge of Woodsville, N. H., has started in fifty races in the past four years and not been out of the money. At one time he won six consecutive races, two of them free-for-alls.

* * *

Harry Graham of Belfast, Me., has had wonderful success the past season with his string of horses, considering he is only eighteen years of age. With Dorcas H., 2.09¼, he won four free-for-alls, and lowered the track record at Waterville in an exhibition to 2.10¼, with Nick Freeman, 2.15¼, he took eight straight races, while his Bobby Wallace, 2.19¼, won four firsts and three seconds out of seven starts. The aggregate scores sixteen first and three seconds out of nineteen races. [illegible] has a youth, seventeen years old, named Smith, that owns and has trained the pacer Princeaway to his record of 2.16¼.

* * *

C. W. Lasell, Whitinsville, Mass., has strong hopes of his filly Bonnie Way, 2.29¾, winner of the two-year-old race at Brockton, making great next year in the futurity events in which she is heavily entered. Over a half-mile track she has been a half in 1.08, quarter in 33½ seconds, and could have gone a mile close to 2.20.

DESHLER READY FOR BOUT IN CHELSEA RING

A local fighter's reputation is at stake this week when Dave Deshler faces Amby McGarry of New York in the arena at Chelsea on Tuesday night, as he meets the toughest proposition he has faced in his short and winning career.

It will be McGarry's first appearance here, and he naturally will want to make a good impression and knows that a decisive win will do it. For that reason he will go the limit of his powers, and he is one of the bull type of fighters who depends on his strength to beat his opponent, rather than any natural cleverness.

Deshler is not the kind of boxer to stand up and be battered down because his adversary happens to be a slugger and should be able to pick McGarry off when he comes to him. If he fails it will be all up with the Cambridge boy, for McGarry is every bit as tough as himself, if not tougher. It would certainly seem so since he knocked out Kid Sullivan, something Deshler could not do.

One well-known local fight follower who has watched Deshler's career carefully thinks that McGarry will beat him on the supposition that Deshler will slow down and weaken as he has done on several occasions. This was noticeable in his bout with Matty Baldwin.

But Deshler rarely fights two contests alike and changes his style according to the way he sizes up his man. He is a hard one to outgeneral and in this respect will have it on the New Yorker.

He certainly should be at his best at the weight called for—135 pounds at 6 o'clock, considering that he has but recently made 130 pounds at the same hour.

No one more than Deshler realizes that he has got to be at his best to stop the rushes of the hefty pounder from Manhattanville, who put a score of them to the bad in bouts in New York last winter.

McGarry may never set the world on fire by his slam, bang milling, but he puts up the kind of battle which always puts the fans on edge.

The semi-final bout between Tommy Rawson, the East Boston champion amateur, and Freddie O'Brien will be worth watching, as both are of the fast working order and give satisfaction. Several three-round bouts will furnish the early entertainment.

Abe Attell will risk his belt as featherweight champion when he faces Harry Baker, recently graduated from the amateur ranks, at Los Angeles, to-morrow night. Attell's ability is generally known. He is the cleverest man of his weight in the ring, and besides has a good punch in either hand, with a knockout blow in the right. Regarding Baker not so much is known, except that he won the national amateur 115-pound championship last Spring, Tommy Rawson of East Boston, being among those he defeated, and fought a fast twenty-round bout with Frankie Neil, getting the decision.

Willie Fitzgerald, who was beaten a short time ago by Harry Lewis, will fight the same man again at Philadelphia, Saturday night, and says that this time he will beat his former conqueror to a pulp.

HARVARD MEN FAIL TO PLAY TOGETHER

Light practice will be the rule at the Stadium this afternoon, as the trip to West Point was tiring for the Harvard football players, and they won't be really themselves for a day or two.

The Crimson players came out of the Army game in good shape, considering the stubbornness of the struggle. Burnham and Miller, who played at left end, both received injuries to their shoulder, which will necessitate their absence from the scrimmage for a few days.

Appolonio will probably discard his crutches this week, and get into the game, as will Parker. With the big fullback and clever center back in harness, Harvard's stock should be given added impetus.

The work of the Harvard eleven from now on will probably consist largely in developing trick plays, which will be used in the Yale contest, only three games away.

Men Slow on Their Feet.

The game at West Point Saturday brought out many of Harvard's weaknesses. The men were slow on their feet, tackled low, and didn't play together as they should. The Army's line was far superior to Harvard's, but their backfield was much weaker, and therefore they lost, 5 to 0.

Oliver D. Cutts, the famous Harvard tackle, who has not seen an Eastern game since the Fall of 1902, says he was much disappointed in the Harvard team, and that the Crimson will have to "buck up" in order to prove a winning combination this season.

"The material seems to be there," says Cutts, "in spots at least, but it is not quite what I had supposed and expected to see.

Harvard Must Work.

"Harvard must make some changes and she must work, work, work. In Saturday's game the tackling was poor. The ends and tackles were slow getting down the field on kicks. The linemen allowed their opponents to sift through and the tackles allowed themselves to be boxed.

"The charging on both offence and defence was slow, ragged and dead. There was no fire, no dash, no fight. The team was sluggish, indecisive, unconcentrated.

"But there were many bright spots. Harvard is fortunate in her captain. He has the confidence of coaches and players; his heart is in his work but he doesn't let it bother him.

"Harvard is also fortunate in her kicking department. Burr and Foster both kicked well."

CALLAHAN MADE $15,000.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Great is baseball, and in Chicago it is greater than any place else. On top of the immense crowds that attended the big League games in Chicago all season, Jimmy Callahan, formerly of the White Sox, cleaned up $15,000 with his Logan Square semi-professionals.

LEROY DEFEATS GRANT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—By a remarkable show of speed and skill Robert Leroy of Columbia won the singles championship cup of the New York Lawn Tennis Club, defeating the holder, Wylie C. Grant, in straight sets, 6—0, 6—1, 6—4.

LIGHT HARNESS RACING AT LOW EBB IN THIS COUNTRY

HITCHINGS BLAMES TRACK MANAGERS

"I'm content to sit quietly till matters take a different turn from the way they are now or the future promises a vast improvement. Running a race track in the best of times returns no better dividends than the law allows in the course of any business with the same amount of money and time invested, but to-day a track manager is certainly facing a tough proposition."

So said William H. Hutchings, manager of the Old Saugus race course for many years, secretary of Granite State Park, Dover, N. H., and manager of Island Park, Albany, N. Y., in the two weeks' meeting there last July, to several followers of trotting yesterday, when asked what his intentions were now that he had sold out his personal interest at Saugus. Continuing, he warmed to the subject in the following way:

Harness Racing at Low Ebb.

"Not only is light harness horse racing at its lowest ebb in Massachusetts and New England, but a glance over the whole country shows the sport is far below what is was a few years since.

"It was in 1903 when at Readville the aggregate of auction pools for the grand circuit netted close to $500,000, while the week after at Providence there were $525,000 worth of pools sold. Betting that year at Saugus was, too, the best we ever had. When the counting up for the next season came, and it must be remembered no interference had been made against racing by the State authorities at the time, I found in figuring up that slightly over 10 per cent. fall off in the speculation had resulted.

"Steadily the change in the personal of the bettors attending the meeting have resulted, till now that end of the proposition has got to be more of a 'piking' than a 'plunging' condition of affairs. In New England to-day there is only one trainer worth having in a betting way at a meeting. It is 'Long Shot' Cox. He of all the trainers have a following of men who will back what they like heavily in the pools. Knowing the profits in running race tracks come from the pool it is just this part must be considered largely.

"A look at the Grand Circuit this year will prove conclusively all I'm saying. How in the world could it be any worse and expect to survive. Almost impossible now. Detroit, once the leader of the circuit, off the map entirely; Cleveland holding a meeting, but quitting a good loser; Buffalo only about making both ends meet; Poughkeepsie losing money; Readville cleaning up only about enough to pay actual expenses on the plant with what it gets from stall rents during the season; Providence with gates closed; Hartford almost in the depths of despair; Syracuse a State Fair; Columbus running two big wheels of fortune in order to quit even, betting end gone almost as the point of revenue; Cincinnati not making a cent; Lexington with the best opportunity of any through the horsemen gathering there from the far West as well as East, yet fell far below its past meetings. Weather caused some of this, of course, but the heavy bettors of a few years since were noticeably absent. Memphis, that formerly closed the circuit, its gates sealed up too. Nice state of affairs, isn't it?

Track Managers to Blame.

"In a great measure the track managers themselves can be blamed for this condition. There is no reason why a race track should not be conducted on the same business principles as theatres. The free pass system is abused. Tickets are handed out regardless. In this, too, a note might be taken from the running tracks. A trainer of runners may have a dozen horses, but he gets only one ticket or pass. The grooms, too, are not allowed passes, but are kept in their quarters and don't need them. The gate is made to pay a revenue.

"In this I uphold what Secretary Jewett of Readville is doing, only I would advise going still further. J. Malcolm Forbes had the right idea in suggesting that owners ought to be made to settle, and then the time would soon come in more than making up the money they spent by causing the actual expenses of racing a stable to be so much less than it had been, the owners would be the gainer with the tracks.

"I anticipate the time will come when the sport will be on a much better plane, and it will have to be before I again take a hand. At present the only place where speculation is legal in the United States, that I know of, and that is around Baltimore where seventy-five days is permitted. It is a mistaken idea that New York State has a pool or any betting law. We in Massachusetts have the same law, practically, as has New York. It is illegal to register a wager in either State, but personal bets can be made at a track without fear of breaking the law.

Horsemen Wasting Time.

"Horsemen attempting to get favorable laws in their own States are simply wasting their time. A national body of horsemen can have something to work on. The horse business is the largest single industry in the country. When the government takes a hand by recognizing it in the manner of foreign countries like England, France, Germany, Austria, Russia, etc., will the daylight of prosperity have placed its stamp on racing. Yes, I know about the State's rights law, but the world does [illegible].

"Whenever the government takes the subject under its care the mode of betting will be radically shifted. Pool selling and bookmaking will be a matter of the past. In its place will be the Paris Mutual system, and the tracks will get a pro rata of the percentage taken out. They would then make the logical odds themselves. When a race is started one in authority would touch a electric button that would lock every machine on the track; no ringing up afterward as in the way sometimes done in the past when under private control.

"Whenever this time arrives you will see the trotting tracks filled with crowds to their very gates, like the way abroad, and the running tracks will be benefitted in the same way. Pool rooms and hand books will be a matter of the past. The government can put them out of business when State and city authority have failed."

HUGH MACLEAN BEAT WALTHOUR IN PARIS

PARIS, France, Oct. 29.—Hugh MacLean of Chelsea, Mass., won the championship of the world here yesterday for 100 kilometers (62½ miles) by defeating Bobbie Walthour, the American short distance champion; Nat Butler of Cambridge, Mass., and Darragone, the French distance rider and former title holder of the distance champion of the world.

This makes a clean sweep for MacLean. With Walthour and Butler, the Chelsea man has been riding in German tracks for the past fortnight, all having been decidedly successful. When the challenge from Paris arrived, inviting the trio to meet Darragone for the title, they hurried to this city.

Over 2,000 spectators were present yesterday, and the race proved one of the most exciting ever seen in this city. MacLean won by a good margin.

Champion MacLean leaves for Boston on Wednesday by the Saxonia.

EXPERTS MUM ON NEW RULES

When are the experts going to express an opinion as to how they like football under the new rules?

As yet there has been a surprising lack of views given by the experts upon the new game. Probably they are waiting for the big games, when they will be able to form a thorough opinion on the revised rules.

From the present outlook it may be said that the experts can't help being in favor of the gridiron sport as it stands, and that next season the game will be played as now, with perhaps a few technical changes. The game now is obviously free from that continual line plunging and amassing of players that existed in the past, and it should please the experts as it has the general public.

CUBS FAIL TO SIGN FOR 1907

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Followers of the Cubs are quite alarmed because of the failure of any of the members of the nine to sign a contract for next season. It is thought that the men feel so blue over losing the world's championship that they don't care to think of any more baseball until late this Winter, when it is expected they will all come in line and affix their signatures to the contracts that President Murphy will extend to them. Manager Chance, with Pitcher Orvie Overall, has left for his Winter quarters at Ocean Park, near Los Angeles.

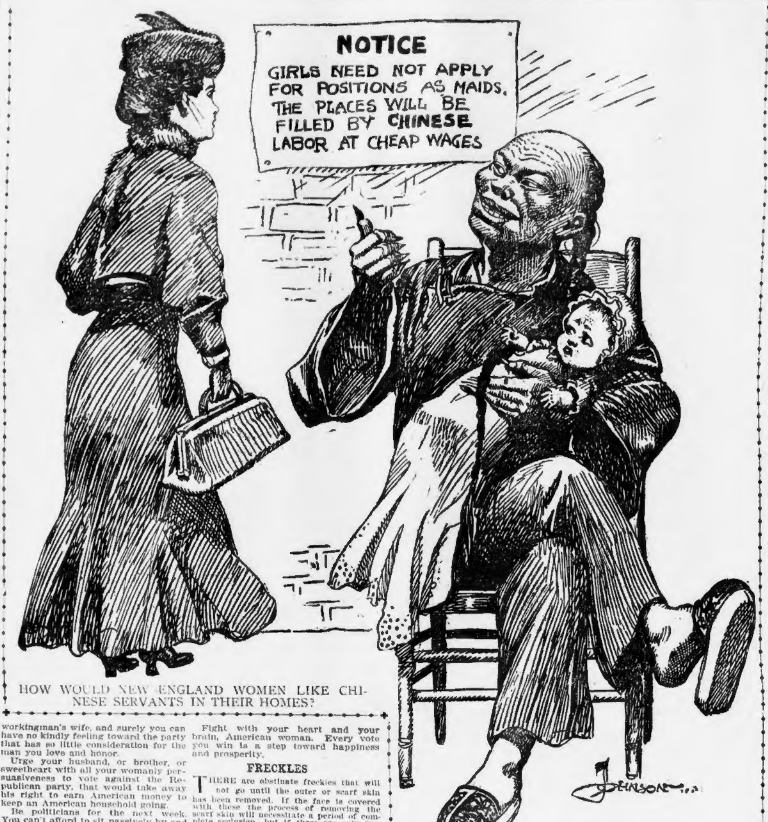
IS THIS THE PROPER SOLUTION OF THE SERVANT GIRL PROBLEM?



NOTICE
GIRLS NEED NOT APPLY FOR POSITIONS AS MAIDS. THE PLACES WILL BE FILLED BY CHINESE LABOR AT CHEAP WAGES
JOHNSON

HOW WOULD NEW ENGLAND WOMEN LIKE CHINESE SERVANTS IN THEIR HOMES?

A Woman's Opinion of the Chinese Question

By Beatrice Fairfax

THIS is not a pretty picture nor one that any woman can look at without a tightening of the heart strings.

And yet things of just this kind will happen if the Chinese are allowed a foothold in this country.

The work and the wages that should go into the pocket of the capable young American girl will go into the capacious pockets of Woo Ting or Win How. And some day his savings will carry him back to end his days in affluence in his native land.

But that is the money that should help the women of America to end their days in prosperity in our own beautiful land, and we are not going to give the Chinaman the chance to take it from us.

It is time the women took a hand in this business. It is all very well for the men to say, "Oh, you women don't know anything about politics."

A Home Question

PERHAPS we don't, but we know well enough what we want in our homes, and a Chinaman is one of the things that we don't want.

Life is not all a bed of roses for the woman who has to earn her living. She has to take some pretty hard knocks and to bear them bravely if she wants to get on. She can't afford to lose the avenues of self-support that are open to her.

With this country flooded with Chinese who would work for one-quarter the wages earned by a competent woman, there would soon be no place for the woman wage-earner.

The place of housemaid, cook, waitress and even nurse maid would be filled by Chinamen.

If the women could vote, there would be no danger of the country being flooded with cheap Chinese labor. To a woman they would vote against the Republican party and its Chinese menace to the happiness of the American home.

Use Your Influence

BUT remember, dear women, that though you have no vote you have a voice, and use that voice to good effect. Do a little campaigning in your own home.

Don't try to talk technical politics; you'll flounder in a moment if you do. Just talk plain common sense. You know that if the Chinese are allowed to come into this country to work on the Panama Canal it will not be long before they will swarm over the country. You know that if they do they will steal the employment that your husbands, sons and daughters have a right to.

Very well!

Doesn't your woman's intuition tell you that the party that would work against the workingman's interests in one way would do it in many others?

The Republican party is not the workingman's friend. You are the workingman's wife, and surely you can have no kindly feeling toward the party that has so little consideration for the man you love and honor.

Urge your husband, or brother, or sweetheart with all your womanly persuasiveness to vote against the Republican party, that would take away his right to earn American money to keep an American household going.

Be politicians for the next week. You can't afford to sit passively by and take no part in this great issue.

It concerns you and your happiness vitally.

It concerns your children's future.

Fight with your heart and your brain, American woman. Every vote you win is a step toward happiness and prosperity.

FRECKLES

THERE are obstinate freckles that will not go until the outer or scarf skin has been removed. If the face is covered with these the process of removing the scarf skin will necessitate a period of complete seclusion, but if there are only two or three freckles it is possible to attack each in turn. Some reputable druggist or doctor will advise an application which will help to remove this skin. When it has fallen the freckles will have gone.

She Praises the Ohio Judge Who Grants Six Months' Stay Before Hearing Divorce Cases

By Dorothy Dix

JUDGE WANAMAKER, of Akron, Ohio, has established a new rule regarding divorce cases that ought to be adopted all over the country. Hereafter he will try no divorce cases until six months after the petitions have been filed.

This will give the disagreeing husbands and wives time to think the matter over, and cool off, and find out if there is not some plan upon which they can adjust their difficulties.

This little common sense action of the Ohio judge is the most feasible solution that has yet been offered for settling the divorce question.

All talk of absolute prohibition of divorce is nonsense. There are cases where the highest morality demands it, and where a man or woman cannot live with the wife or husband to whom he or she is married without self-degradation.

There are also plenty of other cases where married couples are so mismated that they bring out all that is worst in each other, and where it seems as if the only reasonable and humane course is for them to part, and go their separate ways in peace.

On the other hand, there is no doubt that there are thousands of people who are divorced for sufficient reason, and who never would have been divorced if they had not rushed to the courts in the first moment of passion, and, having set the machinery of justice in motion, had a decree ground out for them almost before they knew what they were doing.

Any one who reads the accounts of the divorce cases as they are published in the papers must be struck with the insignificant causes that are usually assigned by the couple who wish to be parted from each other.

Many Too Hasty

THIS of itself is ample proof that they rush to the divorce courts on the spur of the moment, before they have time to ascertain whether their grievances are permanent, or only a temporary miff, and whether they are suffering from permanent alienation of the affections or an ordinary family spat.

It is for these high-tempered, quick-action folks who ask for a divorce one minute, and regret it the next, that a six months' stay of proceedings would be an untold benefit.

Half of the domestic troubles in the world are merely the result of husbands and wives seeing too much of each other, and consequently getting on each other's nerves, and an enforced separation for half a year is all that they need to enable them to perceive the virtues and charms of the husband or wife they are about to lose.

Another point is that they would have a chance to find out that divorce has drawbacks to it that they did not sufficiently realize.

To the man or woman whose marriage has been full of disappointments, the one alluring thing in the world seems to be freedom. They feel that if the fetters that bind them were only removed, if they were only relieved of the presence that has become irritating as a pebble in the shoe, that they would be perfectly happy.

They find the reality to be very different. Deserved or undeserved, divorce leaves its shadow over a life.

In great tragic cases, where the divorce was a necessity, this is an unavoidable sorrow to be nobly borne, but in foolish, trivial cases, where some little fault of temper or tongue or uncongeniality was the only excuse it leaves the divorced wondering if they haven't jumped out of the frying pan into the fire.

This is especially true with women, who form most of the petitioners for divorce, and who, when they have gotten their divorces, ascertain that they are boomerangs that fly back and destroy them.

A Wise Judge

IF a couple have children the chances of reconciliation between them, if they were given six months in which to think it over, would be still greater.

After the sizzling passion that nerved a woman up to breaking up her home and leaving her husband had died down, there are not many things that woman would not condone rather than be separated from her children, or separate the children from their father.

It is a terrible thing for a mother to face the eyes of a little child who is asking, "Where is papa?" and crying for the father whose faults have probably been more foolish than venal.

The truth is that love still works miracles. The heart that has loved may be terribly bruised and lacerated, but it loves still, and it is still possible to forgive and forget.

We must have time for this. Time for the hurts to get well, and the old scars to cease aching. Time to grow wise in, and to see that after all life is a series of compromises, and if the husband or wife to whom we are married is not all that we wish, he or she is better than an empty divorce decree.

It is this time, time in which to kiss and make friends, that the wise Ohio judge grants to quarreling couples to save them from their own headlong folly. Would that every judge would follow this example.

WASHINGTON CREAM PIE

THE following is a recipe which I have tried a score of times and never had a failure: One cup sugar, one-third cup butter, three eggs, beat whites stiff and put in after flour; one-half cup milk, one and one-half cups flour, one heaping teaspoon baking powder, one saltspoon salt. Bake in two round tins of equal size.

FILLING.

Three-fourths cup milk, thicken with two heaping spoons of flour; one beaten egg, stirred in when the milk is boiling. Cocoanut can also be added. I put a chocolate frosting on top with a little shredded cocoanut.

MINCEMEAT

THIS is of the genuine old-fashioned variety, and the measurements are so exact that the most inexperienced bride cannot fail to have good success. Two pounds good beef, one-half peck Baldwin apples, two quarts cider, one pound seeded raisins, one pound sugar, one-half pound suet, get with beef; one-half pound fat pork, one good sized lemon, three tablespoons cinnamon, three teaspoons allspice, one and one-half teaspoons clove, one grated nutmeg. Put beef, suet and lemon in saucepan with two cups water; have butcher cut meat in small pieces. Let simmer till beef is thoroughly done, and water boiled down to one-half cup of rich, brown gravy; add a little salt while simmering. Let it cool in the gravy and when cold set the gravy one side to add to the mince meat when ready. Chop the meat, suet and lemon all fine, add the other ingredients and put on back of stove to simmer at least three or four hours, or until the apples are transparent. The longer you keep it the better it gets.

RICE PUDDING WITHOUT EGGS

ONE quart hot milk; stir into this three mixing spoonfuls of rice, one cup of sugar, piece of butter size of nutmeg, a pinch of salt, one-half cup raisins. Bake in slow oven two hours.

MARY G. MILLETT.
No. 179 Vernon street, Norwood.

OYSTER OMELET

BEAT the eggs, allowing one for each person, without separating the whites and yolks; turn into a hot buttered pan and cook until nearly set. Then spread the top with small oysters that have been plumped in butter and kept hot. Fold the omelet and serve it in a hot platter.

MRS. ELLA P. HAKESLEY.
No. 84 Broadway, Providence, R. I.

APPLE CAKE

ONE pint of flour, one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt, mixed and sifted. Rub in two tablespoons of butter, add one beaten egg and milk to make very thick batter. Spread one inch deep in greased shallow tin. Have ready several pared, cored and quartered apples. Press points into dough, sprinkle thickly with sugar mixed with little cinnamon and bake in very hot oven. This is very good.

THE HOUSE OF DOOM

A Romance of Love and Mystery

By GEORGE BARRY BRONSON

Synopsis

SIBYL BURNET playfully asks Wilfrid Hughes to marry her. He respectfully declines to be more than a friend. As she says she must marry some one, she selects Ellice Winsloe. She tearfully confesses that she has a secret which she dare not reveal. That night Eric Domville, Wilfrid's friend, tells him that he had seen Sibyl talking to a strange man in the neighboring wood. The man seemed to be her lover, and when she told him that she was going to marry Winsloe, he flew into a passion and threatened to reveal her secret if she did not marry him. She repelled his attempt at blackmail with indignation. Shortly after leaving the woods Domville hears a shot. Then a servant reports that a strange man had been found shot dead in the wood. Wilfrid and Eric believe they know Sibyl's secret. They steal out, search the dead body of the man, and take away all his letters. Before they are quite well finished they are interrupted by the arrival of the police.

After their return to the house Domville and Hughes read the letters they have taken from the dead man's pocket. From them they discover at least a part of Sibyl's secret—that at one time she had loved this man, known as John Parham, of Larchmont.

It is far beyond midnight when, as they sit talking and wondering how they are to face Sibyl, a knock sounds at the door. Wilfrid opens it and there before them stands the girl they fear and pity.

Sibyl tells Wilfrid she is in fear of her secret being discovered, and that she intends to run away and hide in New York's crowded East Side. She begs him to pretend that he is her husband, saying that is her only chance for safety.

Sibyl Burnet and Marie leave at midnight in their automobile.

CHAPTER VIII

The Revelation

WHEN, next morning, the tragedy in the woods became known the whole household was astir.

It was discussed at the breakfast table, and Jack Burnet, Wydcombe, Ellice Winsloe and myself agreed to walk down to the town and ascertain the facts. Eric remained behind to drive Mrs. Wydcombe into New Rochelle as he had arranged on the previous evening.

About half-past 10 we four men walked down to the town hall, where we found the policeman with two other officers in plain clothes. Great consternation had, of course, been created by the startling news, and the whole town seemed to be gossiping at the doors, and forming wild theories concerning the death of the unfortunate unknown.

After making inquiries of the police and hearing details of which I, of course, was already aware, Burnet asked leave to view the body.

"Certainly," was Booth's prompt reply, and we moved off together.

My great fear was that the officer should remark upon my previous visit to him, therefore I walked with him, keeping him a considerable distance behind the others as we went up the street.

"The captain is not here now?" I remarked casually, in order that he should recall our meeting up in the wood while we were alone, and not before my friends.

"No, sir. The captain went to New York about an hour ago," was his response, and a few minutes later we turned into an undertaking establishment and saw the body lying face upward upon a plank on trestles.

Booth drew the handkerchief from the dead face that seemed to stare at us so lividly in the semi-darkness, and from my companions escaped exclamations of surprise and horror.

"Awful!" gasped young Burnet, who was known as "The Scrambler" to his intimates—a name given to him at Yale. "I wonder who murdered him?"

"I wonder!" echoed Ellice Winsloe in a hard, hushed voice.

A Strange Tone

His strange tone attracted me, and my eyes fell upon his countenance. It had, I was amazed to see, blanched in an instant and was as white as that of the dead man himself.

The sudden impression produced upon the others was such that they failed to notice the change in Ellice. I, however, saw it distinctly.

I was confident of one thing—that he had identified the victim.

Yet he said nothing beyond agreeing with his companions that a dastardly crime had been committed, and expressing a hope that the assassin would be arrested.

"He's a stranger," declared Burnet.

"Yes—an entire stranger," said Winsloe, emphatically, and at the same time he bent forward to get a better view of the lifeless countenance. Standing behind, I watched him closely.

The sight of the body had produced a remarkable change in him. His face was wild and terrified, and I saw that his lips trembled.

Nevertheless he braced himself up with a great effort, and said:

"Then it's a complete mystery. He was found by Harris, the watchman, last night."

"Yes, sir," answered Booth. "He'd been dead then some hours. Doctor Richards says it's murder. He's goin' to make the post-mortem this afternoon."

Deepens the Mystery

"Has the revolver been found?" he asked.

"No, sir. We have been searching all the morning, but can find nothing."

"And what was in the pockets?" inquired Winsloe, his anxiety well disguised.

"Nothing."

"Nothing at all?" he demanded.

"Oh, a knife, a piece of pencil, a little money and a few odds and ends. But nothing more of any use to us."

"Then you can't identify him?"

"Unfortunately we can't, sir," was the officer's reply. "We hope to find out who he is, but from all appearances he's a total stranger in these parts."

"It's very evident that the murderer searched the poor fellow's pockets," Jack said. "He was afraid lest his victim might be identified."

"That's what we think," remarked one of Booth's companions. "The tab on the back of his coat, which bore the maker's name, has been cut out."

"By the murderer?" asked Wydcombe.

"Probably so."

"Then whoever killed him took good care to remove every scrap of evidence which might lead to his victim's identification," Ellice Winsloe remarked, standing with his eyes fixed steadily upon the dead face.

"That's what the captain thinks. He believes that if we establish who the man is, then we shall have no difficulty in putting our hand upon the guilty person."

"But did no one hear the shot?" Winsloe inquired.

"Nobody. The doctor thinks the affair took place late in the afternoon," answered Booth.

Winsloe pursed his white lips, and turned away. For an instant a haggard, fearsome look crossed his hard countenance—the look of a man haunted by a guilty secret—but a moment later, when Wydcombe turned to join him, his face changed, and he exclaimed, lightly:

"Let's get out of this. The thing's a complete mystery, and we must leave it to the police to puzzle it all out. Of course, there'll be an inquest, and then we may hear something further."

"At present the affair is a complete enigma," Jack remarked. Then, bending again toward the dead man's face, he added: "Do you know, Ellice, I can't help thinking that I've seen him before somewhere, but where I can't for the life of me recollect."

I saw that Winsloe started, and he turned again.

The Strange Duel

"I don't recognize him in the least," he said quickly. "A face is always altered by death. He now resembles, perhaps, somebody you've known."

"Ah, perhaps so," remarked the young man. "Yet I certainly have a faint impression of having seen him somewhere before—or somebody very like him."

"I hope you will try and remember," urged the policeman. "It would be of great assistance to us."

"I'll try and think, Booth. If I recollect I'll send for you," he answered.

"Thank you," the policeman replied, and as I glanced covertly at Winsloe I saw that his face had fallen.

Would Burnet recall who he really was? Winsloe knew the victim. That he had identified him I was fully convinced, and yet he held his tongue. What motive had he in that? Was he, I wondered, aware of the terrible truth?

Fortunately I held in my possession those injudicious letters of Sibyl's, and that miniature; fortunately, too, I knew the real facts, and was thus enabled to watch the impression produced upon Winsloe by sight of the victim.

Whatever his knowledge, his self-command was marvellous. The others, who had not seen that expression on his face when he had first gazed upon the dead countenance, had no suspicion of the truth.

Yes, Ellice Winsloe was playing a double game; therefore I resolved to wait and to watch.

Together we walked up through the grounds again, discussing the strange affair. Jack advanced more than one theory.

"Tennant Woods don't lead to anywhere," he pointed out. "Therefore the dead man kept an appointment there. Perhaps he was lured to his death," he added. "There may have been two or more assassins."

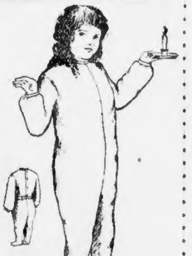
Child's Sleeping Garment



No. 5,016—In the making of clothes for the little ones, comfort is the first thing to be considered. This style of sleeping garment is a popular one with all mothers, as they feel assured that the child is well protected, even if the little feet peep from under the covers, as they sometimes do, however carefully they may be tucked in. The pattern is well cut and fitted with full directions for making. Outing or Canton flannel are the material most in use for the making of garments of this kind. The medium size requires 2½ yards of 36-inch material.

A simple lotion to remove freckles is composed of one dram ammonium chloride to four ounces of distilled water. Apply at night after the face has been bathed in hot water.

The use of medicine nearly always works ravages upon the teeth, sometimes destroying them. So, in cases of long illness, special care in the use of antiseptics or neutralizers should be employed. Consult the attending physician about the mater, and insist upon the proper care.

* * *

A simple way to clear the complexion is before washing to rub over the face two teaspoonfuls of flowers of sulphur mixed in half a pint of new milk. This should stand a little while before being used.

It is a disgraceful neglect of the well-being of the teeth to bite hard substances with them or to use them for any work that should be done by scissors or pincers and other tools. The teeth should be used only for the purpose for which they were made.

Olive oil is the beauty doctor's cure-all for poor complexions. He advises its use in every possible food, plenty of green salads reeking with it, and then doses of it by the tablespoonful.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

THE NATURAL SEQUENCE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been very friendly with a young lady for the past three years. The other evening she kept saying something which annoyed me, and to tease her I threatened to kiss her if she persisted, and persist she did. I then attempted to carry out my threat, and although I did not kiss her she is very much provoked that I should have attempted such a thing. I feel very badly about the matter, and do not think that an occurrence of this sort should jeopardize a friendship. I write to ask if you would be good enough to give me the benefit of your advice in the columns of your paper.

A. M. B.

THE girl knew perfectly well that you would attempt to carry out your threat, and yet deliberately repeated her remark. Many other girls have done exactly the same thing. They encourage a man to kiss them, and yet they are angry when he does it. Apologize, tell the girl you made a mistake and that you will never repeat the offence. She may forgive you and she may not. The apology may make her as angry as did the offence. Girls are strange creatures sometimes.

AN ANXIOUS HEART

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am very much taken with a man thirty-one years old, while I am eighteen. I am employed in an office where he was and learned to care for him very much. He used to take me home from business on stormy nights. He has left the office since and has been in several times and when I was not there he asked for me. I have heard from different people that he cared a great deal for me, but he has never asked to take me to any place of amusement. I imagine perhaps he thinks I don't care for him, as I used to answer him very snippy because I did not like to let him know that I cared for him. My friends think he is too old for me, because he has gray hair, but he does not look his age. What would you advise me to do, as I have tried my best to forget him but I can't?

ANXIOUS HEART.

POOR little "anxious heart," it is best never to be "snippy" to people, even though you do wish to conceal the fact that you care too much. I am afraid there is nothing you can do but be friendly toward him when you meet. If he cares for you he will be so glad that your "snippy" manner has disappeared that perhaps he will feel encouraged.

HUB TYPOS AND LAWRENCE C. L. U. SCORE DRAPER

With Almost Entire Membership of 1,500 Present, Printers Pass Unanimous Vote.

ATHOL CENTRAL UNION, TOO

More labor organizations have adopted resolutions denouncing Eben S. Draper as an enemy of organized labor and calling upon the wage-earners of the State to work for the success of E. Gerry Brown, the Democratic-Independence League candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. They are:

Boston Typographical Union.
Lawrence Central Labor Union.
Athol Central Labor Union.

Boston Typographical Union.

Declaring Eben S. Draper to be an adherent of the Parry-Post system, or Employers' Association, which, it is claimed, is doing its utmost to disrupt organized labor in this country, Boston Typographical Union No. 13 yesterday passed resolutions unanimously indorsing E. Gerry Brown for the office of Lieutenant-Governor. Nearly every one of the 1,500 members of the union was present at the meeting, which was held in Brodbine Hall, Dover and Albany streets. Mr. Brown has been a member of the International Typographical Union for years, at present being secretary of the Brockton local, and he was indorsed amid great enthusiasm. The members pledged themselves to assist in every way possible in the election of Mr. Brown. Several addresses were made in which it was pointed out that the union should feel deeply honored in having one of its members nominated for this high position. The resolutions adopted are as follows:

"Whereas, Eben S. Draper is an adherent of the Parry-Post system of running his factory at Hopedale, where spotters endanger the job of a man who advocates unionism; and

"Whereas, The International Typographical Union has been honored by having one of its members nominated for the exalted position of Lieutenant-Governor of this State; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the members of Boston Typographical Union No. 13, pledge ourselves to use every honorable means in our power to assist in the election of E. Gerry Brown, of Brockton, member of the Brockton Typographical Union, and a man who has for twenty years fearlessly advocated the principles of unionism."

Lawrence Central Labor Union.

The delegates to the Lawrence Central Labor Union, representing forty-four affiliated unions, unanimously adopted resolutions at yesterday's meeting condemning Eben S. Draper for conducting at Hopedale an establishment "in which no union man can be employed without sacrificing his manhood and independence." E. Gerry Brown was indorsed as one who has "labored unceasingly for over a generation to uplift labor." "Eben S. Draper," the resolutions read, "expends his time to degrade labor." The resolutions follow:

"Whereas, Eben S. Draper, Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth and candidate anew for the suffrages of the people, has maintained in Hopedale, Mass., an establishment in which no union man can be employed without sacrificing his manhood and independence; and

"Whereas, Eben S. Draper, by his attitude towards organized labor in his works at Hopedale and in his attitude to the toiler in general has forfeited and claim to the support personally or the votes politically of the worker; therefore, be it

"Resolved, By the Central Labor Union of Lawrence, Mass., in regular meeting assembled, that the methods practiced by Eben S. Draper of Hopedale, are hereby condemned; and

"Resolved, That we call upon all members of this union and the members of the forty-four local unions affiliated with us to exert their utmost efforts on November 6 to defeat Eben S. Draper for the office of Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth; and

"Resolved, That as labor is on trial, labor should be staunch in defence of itself; and be it further

"Resolved, That we commend to the electors of Lawrence and vicinity E. Gerry Brown of Brockton for their support as Lieutenant-Governor. E. Gerry Brown has labored unceasingly for over a generation to uplift labor. Eben S. Draper expends his time to 'degrade' labor."

Athol Central Labor Union.

The Athol Central Labor Union, at a special meeting, resolved to do all in its power to defeat Eben S. Draper for Lieutenant-Governor. Delegates representing 600 men were present. The resolutions, which were adopted unanimously, are as follows:

"Whereas, Eben S. Draper, Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts, has proven himself to be an enemy of labor; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the delegates of the Central Labor Union of Athol, hereby denounce said Eben S. Draper for his position toward labor; and be it further

"Resolved, That we do all in our power to defeat him at the polls on election day.

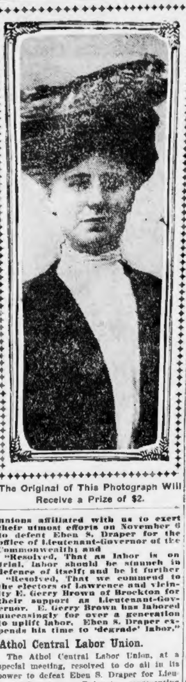
WOMAN GETS SHOPPING PRIZE AND RETURNS IT



The Original of This Photograph Will Receive a Prize of $2.

Admits Her Identification of Photo Printed Last Wednesday Was a Mistake.

The snapshot of a woman shopper printed last Wednesday remains unidentified. It was identified Friday by Miss Emma Gilman of No. 664 Tremont street, Boston, and she was awarded the prize of $2 and was presented an enlargement of the original photograph.

She has returned the photo with this letter:

When I arrived home and looked at my suit and hat and then looked at the picture well, I came to the conclusion that I was not the lucky woman, so return this as the owner will probably be very pleased to have it.

And so the prize still awaits a claimant. It pays to follow these little snapshots daily. You can't tell what day YOUR picture may appear.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

HOW THE PIANO TRUST

Uses the Good Old Boston Firm Names

To Get Big Prices for Their Common Commercial Pianos

A [illegible] point with pride to the [illegible] Boston names which stood for everything that [illegible] merit and honest values in Pianos [illegible] and the good fortune to have [illegible] makers in the world, men who [illegible] into their work, and which [illegible] names graven on their [illegible] the longest trade of genius. All [illegible] glutted in their pride when we [illegible] names spoken with reverence by [illegible] people of our country—and today [illegible] day of money, not music, with the Piano Trust. The only music the Piano Trust [illegible] the jingle of the dollars that [illegible] profit they get when they "Play [illegible]"

To you who have been reading our piano statements we wish to say this: We do not wish to mislead you in the [illegible] there are still the finest makers of Pianos in the World in our good city, and we hope to have them with us always, but there are several good [illegible] being put on pianos which instead of meaning merit mean mendacity. The names of the men that once meant so much now serve as a cloak to the public to buy a Piano without a soul, without musical merit, without artistic value, without a shred of the genius of the men whose names NOW cloak a common Commercial Piano, a Piano whose parts are bought like so much old junk, bought in a dozen different trade centres of our country, bought wherever they can be bought the cheapest, bought by the ton and shipped into our city, Good Old Boston, as freight, just common commercial freight. The cases from N. Y., the actions (hammers, felting, inside parts) from New York, the keys from Chicago, other parts from Cleveland, Detroit, Philadelphia and several other places—any old place where they can be bought cheap. These parts are then assembled in Boston, that is, put together, thrown together, glued together, tacked and hammered together, and then, after the soulless thing is framed up, they put the good old firm name on it, and last, but not least, they put on a price that is as false to express its value as the name NOW is to express merit.

You ask why this change? The Piano Trust has bought out or frozen out some of our finest firms (not all, thank goodness; we have many fine makers left whose names mean all that is best in piano manufacture, and when the opportunity presents itself we are going to sing their praises in our announcements), and they are now using the old firm names for their good will. In fact, they are gilding the Littleness of the present with the Glory of the Past Greatness. We are seriously considering establishing a bureau of Piano information, at the disposal of the Public, whether they buy of us or not. We would like advice on the matter. Lots can be done to protect the public and the honest makers. Read our weekly announcements and get Piano wise.

3 MONTHS' PIANO LESSONS FREE

to everyone buying a piano of us this week—the finest piano instruction possible. For full information call at Roxbury Storage Salesrooms.

When a dozen, 50 or 100 fine Pianos, new or second-hand, get, through force of circumstances, to our storage salesrooms, we put on our sacrifice expense tag, and the piano goes regardless of make, Trust or no Trust, to the first man or woman with brains enough to know a good thing when they see it. No maker gets a less price than the individual.

NO MAKER GETS A LESS PRICE THAN THE INDIVIDUAL.

Several of below makes left, will be sold this week at reduced prices.

Wellington, Chicago—Sommer, Omaha, Neb.—Whitney, Chicago—Smith & Barnes, Chicago—Rogers Bros., Chicago—Marshall & Wendell, New York—Kranich & Bach, New York—Kingsbury, Chicago—Woodbury, Leominster—Geo. Steck, New York—Jacob Bros., New York. People familiar with these names will know that they are excellent pianos in every respect. They are sold at a less price than New England makes only because Boston is not acquainted with their true worth.

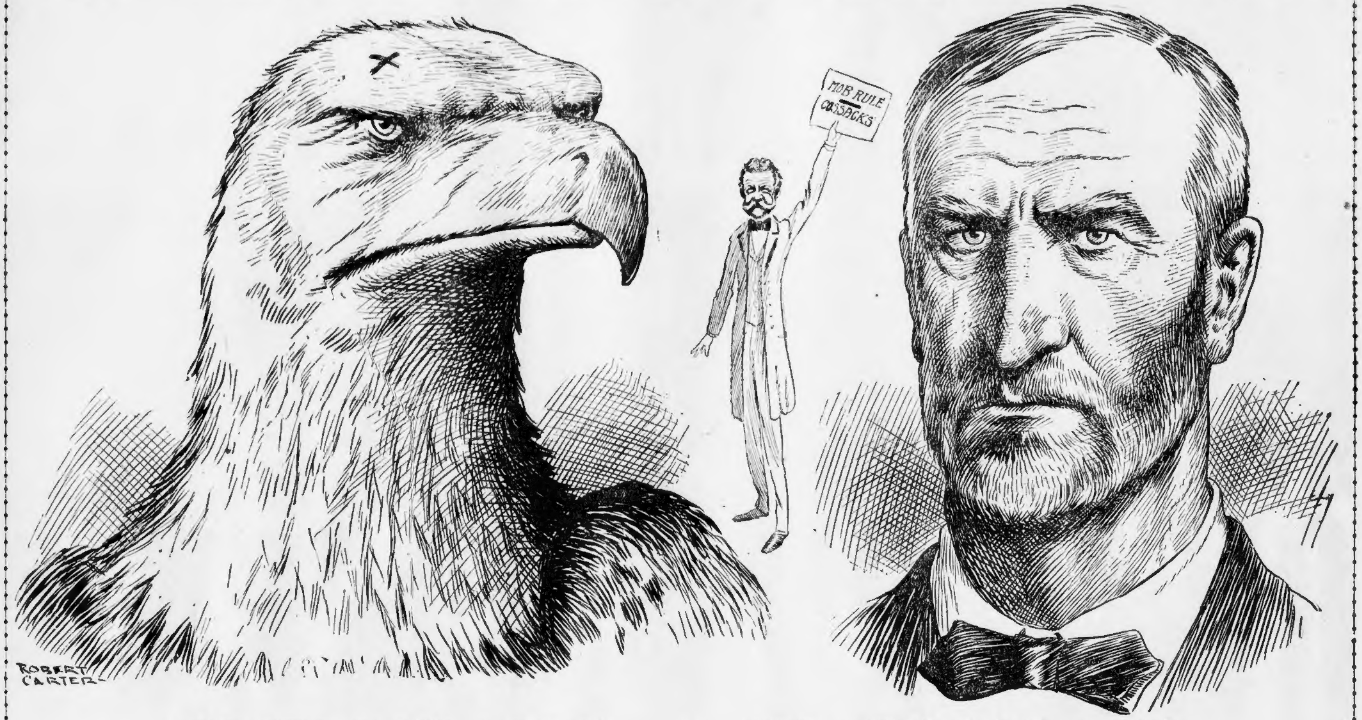
EDITORIAL PAGE OF HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN MONDAY, OCTOBER 29

THE TRUSTS ARE MISTAKEN THIS TIME



THIS BIRD IS NOT A GOOSE | THIS VOTER IS NOT A FOOL

The Trusts have concluded that there is NO limit to the patient servility of the American people.

They think the American Eagle has turned into a goose, and the American citizen into a cowed, timorous fool.

But the Trusts are mistaken. Too much stolen money, too long immunity from punishment, have made them dull-minded.

The American citizen is still a fighter. He is still capable of resenting wrong. He STILL objects to "taxation without representation," whether it be taxation by King George or King Rockefeller.

The Trusts believe that the Americans are getting to be like Great Britain's three hundred millions of timid subjects in India.

This coming election will enlighten Morgan, Ryan, Belmont, Rockefeller and the little Trust owners, such as Draper and Gaston, who think they have to deal with men forgetful of the words "Freedom" and "Justice."

The power to think clearly, to SEE clearly and to act vigorously is NOT dead in America.

The old-fashioned bird in this picture and the old-fashioned MAN in this picture will be heard from on Election Day—and the Trusts that induced Guild to appoint their man Dana to the Superior Court bench will send Guild back to his Banking Trust newspaper office to stay.

The Truth Comes Out in the End

You Remember What We Have Written About United States Senators, and Special Favors for the Prosperous.

You have read often enough in this newspaper that the trusts put their men in Congress and in the Senate, THAT IN BOTH PARTIES AND BOTH BRANCHES OF CONGRESS THERE ARE MEN THAT OUGHT TO BE IN JAIL.

When Mr. Hearst and his newspapers told the truth about these gentlemen, you remember what a row was made. Corporation Senator and Attorney Bailey got up in the Senate and almost cried—we had published some unpleasant truths about THAT particular Standard Oil person.

And the newspapers owned by the Trusts, as Senators and Congressmen are owned, were full of protests against Hearst FOR STIRRING UP "CLASS HATRED."

Well, Senator Burton, of the beautiful Trust Senate, has at last gone to jail for ordinary thievish misconduct. He is imprisoned and he will stay there for a time sufficiently long to make it clear to him THAT EVEN A TRUST-LOVING SENATOR CAN BE REACHED.

And what is more, if Hearst and his newspapers can manage it, there will be men other than Burton of the same high Senate that will go to jail to keep him company.

Casually, when we have invited our fellow citizens to put a few of their Trust Senators and a few of their Trust managers in jail, we have always pointed out the fact that Trust government in this country makes a distinction even among JAILBIRDS.

When a respectable bank president steals the money belonging to women, HE GOES TO JAIL IN A PRIVATE CAR.

HE IS HANDLED VERY TENDERLY.

If one of the women, made desperate by poverty, steals anything, she is taken to jail through the public streets, like a stray animal being taken to the pound.

This special regard for special kinds of jailbirds is well illustrated in the case of the convict Senator Burton now in prison.

The New York World, which represents the Trust interests, tells you:

> "A half hour's stroll about the city varied the monotony of Burton's first day in a cell, and in place of prison fare he was permitted to enjoy a breakfast prepared by his wife's own hands. With home cooking and a daily outing, the six months' term to which he has been sentenced should pass with reasonable comfort."

That is a nice picture of "equal rights for all, special privileges for none," in a free country, isn't it?

Can you imagine the ordinary workingman taken to jail and sending for his wife to cook his breakfast?

Don't you think it is really time for you voters to try to impress upon the Trusts that they cannot actually divide even the CONVICTS into classes?

Loveliness
Needs not the foreign aid of ornament,
But is when unadorn'd adorned the most.

MR. E. Z. MARK MEETS A NOBLE

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

1. LORD ROTTINGBUNCH-ROTTINGBUNCH—Ha-aws, my hexchequer 'as been depleted to such an hextent by my recent entertainments to the King and 'is court that, Mr. Mark, Hi 'ave been obliged to come to this country in order to privately dispose of some of my family heirlooms.

2. LORD R-R.—So, Mr. Mark, Hi 'ave brought to you this 'elmet, worn by my paternal hancestor at the battles of Bosworth Field, Agincourt and Blenheim. This great—this priceless relic—I will dispose of for one hundred pounds.

3. MR. E. Z.—My, my! but your lordship honors me with the offer. I will be only too glad to purchase it at your figure. Poor fellow.
LORD R-R.—Oh, many thanks! Oh, woe is me! that I should be placed in such a position as this all through my devotion to my King. Farewell, relic of my hancestor, farewell!

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Tells of a Workingman Who Has the Right Idea About Bettering His Condition in Life

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

I HAVE a letter from a workingman who has ideals worthy of repeating in this column. He says:

"I am one of the sons whose mother has to rise at the dawn.

"I have been trying by argument, persuasion and reason to convince my fellow-workmen of their errors, but they are too deeply absorbed in tobacco and beer to heed me.

"I have often labored hard, bringing facts of every nature, chemical, physical and other natural causes, as to why they should not smoke, drink or gamble.

"It is a hard task. I, too, as a fellow-workman, am trying to get the toilers to help make the world realize our needs.

"I am a blacksmith's helper, earning the small sum of $10.60 a week."

Yet this man has found time to read and think and to acquire an education which enables him to write an excellent letter; he is looking toward a better position and better rewards for his work, and he will find what he is searching for, because he is keeping his brain clear and his body healthful by decent habits.

He Will Be Ready

WHEN the present reign of monopoly gives way to a more just system of government this man will be ready to occupy a more enviable position than those who are merely crying out against existing evils, while they waste their wages in drink and gambling.

I met a sweet-faced, but sad-looking, woman not long ago, a wife of a workingman.

I spoke of my hope that the time would come when such as she might have the benefit of the country for homes. That the crowded cities might be weeded out, and sun and room and air given to each child of God as part of his rightful inheritance.

The woman's face saddened.

"You would never get some men away from the place where they could get their drink," she said. "A man will have his drink if his children go with no shoes and his wife goes hungry."

It seemed to this weary woman that nearly all men were of this type. She had grown embittered by close association with such men.

I told her science would help remedy that matter; the school children would be taught the poisonous effects of alcoholic drink, and that the world would waken to a consciousness of the necessity for stringent laws, making it impossible for the workingman to obtain drink so easily.

But the woman shook her head; none of these reforms, she felt, would come in her day, and she persisted that "The man would have his drink if his family went begging."

A Needed Society

IT would be an excellent idea if the enterprising blacksmith who wrote me would start a Society of Anti-Drinkers and Gamblers among his associates. Even if he began with only two or three members the society might grow into something of interest and usefulness in a few years and lead to the moral, intellectual and financial advancement of its members. They could obtain books from the libraries and study along lines which interested them, information on the subject of the relation of drink and gambling to crime could be obtained from the courts and related at each meeting. A scrap book containing every reference to crime caused by drink in the daily press would be an interesting club document.

A movement like this would certainly have its effect, and the men who were associated with it would be benefited.

Not only in mind, but they would take precedent over gin-sodden competitors when advancement was considered.

There is little use of making new conditions for the workingman, who will not make a new man of himself.

Fortunately there is a large class of workingmen, like my correspondent, fitted for the new conditions. Let all such unite not only in a labor union, but in a non-drinking and gambling union.

Better hours, better wages, better homes, better habits, better men—this is what the world needs.

Little Editorials from the People

A POLITICAL GRASSHOPPER

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

All of us have seen voters change from one of the two old parties to the other, from one of those parties to the People's party, and from the latter back to one of the older. We have even seen Democrats affiliate with the Prohibition party. Some of these jumps have surprised us, but the prize for the champion political grasshopper should ornament the chest of Alderman Alexander Cook of Chelsea who, a few years ago, advocated Socialism with the same bewildering ability he now gives to telling dialect stories for the Republican party. A member of a labor union has as much right to be a member of the Republican party as of any other, but the human mind cannot grasp the course of evolution one must pass through to be transformed from a Socialist to a Republican. And especially to that brand of Republican who will try to re-elect Congressman Gardner, a man whose methods have disgraced the State, and oppose Senator Schofield, a man who is respected by all and who has proven himself a friend to those who deserve friends.
